

A sepia-toned photograph of a person in a field with mountains in the background. The person is in the lower-left foreground, seen from the back, wearing a dark, sleeveless garment and a headband. They are holding a long, thin object, possibly a spear or a staff, which points towards the ground. The field is filled with dense, low-lying vegetation. In the background, a range of mountains is visible under a hazy sky. The overall tone is historical and documentary.

A Place Against Time Paul Sillitoe,2013-10-31 A Place Against Time is an ethnographically focused environmental study of Montane New Guinea where people were among the world s first to cultivate crops some ten millennia ago and where today an enduring agricultural condition continues It arranges its account of climate vegetation topography and geology according to their relationship with the soils of the region occupied by Wola speakers in the Southern Highlands Province of Papua New Guinea in the Western Pacific This book breaks new intellectual ground as an ethno environmental investigation with a soils perspective ethno pedology being a little researched topic to date

Between Culture and Fantasy Gillian Gillison,1993-07 The myths of the Gimi a people of the Eastern Highlands of Papua New Guinea attribute the origin of death and misery to the incestuous desires of the first woman or man as if one sex or the other were guilty of the very first misdeed Working for years among the Gimi speaking their language anthropologist Gillian Gillison gained rare insight into these myths and their pervasive influence in the organization of social life Hers is a fascinating account of relations between the sexes and the role of myth in the transition between unconscious fantasy and cultural forms Gillison shows how the themes expressed in Gimi myths especially sexual hostility and an obsession with menstrual blood are dramatized in the elaborate public rituals that accompany marriage death and other life crises The separate myths of Gimi women and men seem to speak to one another to protest alter and enlarge upon myths of the other sex The sexes cast blame in the veiled imagery of myth and then play out their debate in joint rituals cooperating in shows of conflict and resolution that leave men undefeated and accord women the greater blame for misfortune Gender and Society in the New Guinea Highlands Marilyn G. Gelber,2019-03-13 The societies of the New Guinea Highlands are among the last contacted horticulturalist peoples of the world Endemic warfare elaborate systems of exchange flamboyant personality styles and exaggerated forms of antagonism between the sexes have made them a subject of interest to anthropologists for three decades This book examines the relationship between the sexes especially the attitudes and behavior of men toward women as a result of the economic political and structural constraints of Highland social organization Hostility toward women which is evident in a high level of violence toward women and an articulated fear of association with them is given special attention Dr Gelber s study is unique not only because it treats gender relations in the entire culture area of the Highlands but also because a broad array of types of anthropological analysis ecosystemic population regulatory economic sociopolitical psychological and ideational are considered for their relevance to the phenomenon of intersexual hostility The author s emphasis on underlying problems of explanation and theory as well as the treatment of attitudes and beliefs as a function of socioeconomic constraints is a departure from previous modes of analysis and raises new issues in anthropological theory and in the study of gender Rethinking Agriculture Timothy P

Denham, José Iriarte, Luc Vrydaghs, 2016-07-01 Although the need to study agriculture in different parts of the world on its own terms has long been recognized and re-affirmed a tendency persists to evaluate agriculture across the globe using concepts lines of evidence and methods derived from Eurasian research However researchers working in different regions are becoming increasingly aware of fundamental differences in the nature of and methods employed to study agriculture and plant exploitation practices in the past Contributions to this volume rethink agriculture whether in terms of existing regional chronologies in terms of techniques employed or in terms of the concepts that frame our interpretations This volume highlights new archaeological and ethnoarchaeological research on early agriculture in understudied non Eurasian regions including Island Southeast Asia and the Pacific the Americas and Africa to present a more balanced view of the origins and development of agricultural practices around the globe Bones of the Ancestors Brian Egloff, 2008 The 3 500 year old

Ambum Stone from Papua New Guinea is the focus of several archaeological stories The stone itself is an interesting artifact an important piece of art history that tells us something about the ancient Papuans The stone is also at the center of controversies over the provenance and ownership of ancient artifacts as it was excavated on the island of New Guinea transferred out of the country and sold on the antiquities market In telling the story of the Ambum Stone Brian Egloff raises questions about what can be learned from ancient works of art about cultural property and the ownership of the past about the complex and at times shadowy world of art dealers and collectors and about the role ancient artifacts can play in forming the identities of modern peoples Book jacket Archaeology of Oceania Ian Lilley, 2008-04-15 This book is a state of the art introduction to the archaeology of Oceania covering both Australia and the Pacific Islands The first text to provide integrated treatment of the archaeologies of Australia and the Pacific Islands Enables readers to form a coherent overview of cultural developments across the region as a whole Brings together contributions from some of the region s leading scholars Focuses on new discoveries conceptual innovations and postcolonial realpolitik Challenges conventional thinking on major regional and global issues in archaeology National Library of Medicine Current Catalog National Library of Medicine

This book deals with war in three Oceanian societies More specifically it analyzes the following the process of war in relation to population pressure among New Guinea s Maring people extension and contraction in the headhunting activities of the

Iban people of Sarawak during the nineteenth century and the disruption resulting from the introduction of muskets in the warfare of the Maoris of New Zealand In all of the analyses I have viewed war as a process rather than simply as something that either does or does not occur and I have tried to see how the process relates to environmental problems or perturbations actually faced by people The use of such an approach can I believe lead to important understandings about war and more generally about how people respond to environmental problems A goal in this book is to show that this is so Although it is only relatively recently that the significance of viewing war as a process became clear to me my interest in war in relation to environmental and demographic phenomena is of long vii viii Preface standing The beginning of the studies resulting in the present book can in fact be said to date back to the mid 1950s when I was in New Zealand to do library research for my Ph D dissertation on Maori warfare

Environment, Development and Change in Rural Asia-Pacific John Connell, Eric Waddell, 2006-12-05 This volume examines the economic political social and environmental challenges facing rural communities in the Asia Pacific region as global issues intersect with local contexts Such challenges from climatic change and volcanic eruption to population growth and violent civil unrest have stimulated local resilience amongst communities and led to evolving regional institutions and environment management practices changing social relationships and producing new forms of stratification Bringing together case studies from across mainland Southeast Asia and the Island Pacific an expert team of international contributors reveal how communities at the periphery take charge of their lives champion the virtues of their own local systems of production and consumption and engage in the complexities of new structures of development that demand a response to the vacillations of global politics economy and society Inherent in this is the recognition that development as we have come to know it is far from over Each chapter emphasizes the growing recognition that ecological and environmental issues are key to any understanding and analysis of structures of sustainable development Providing diverse multidisciplinary theoretical and empirical perspectives Environment Development and Change in Rural Asia Pacific makes an important contribution to the revitalization of development studies and as such will be essential reading for scholars in the field as well as those with an interest in Asia Pacific studies economic geography and political economy

Sustaining the Earth John Young, 1990 Environmental issues once the benign hobby of the few have become everyone's urgent concern As we approach the end of the 20th century and as these issues become more pressing John Young's tour de force is a welcome timely assessment of the environmental movement and a call to arms for an effective attack on the problems

Human Energetics in Biological Anthropology Stanley J. Ulijaszek, 1995-06-30 Looks at energy intake expenditure and balance in traditional subsistence populations

The Cambridge World Prehistory Colin Renfrew, Paul Bahn, 2014-06-09 The Cambridge World Prehistory provides a systematic and authoritative examination of the prehistory of every region around the world from the early days of human origins in Africa two million years ago to the beginnings of written history which in some areas started only two centuries ago Written by a team of leading international scholars the volumes include both traditional topics and cutting edge approaches such as archaeolinguistics and molecular genetics and examine the essential questions of human development around the world The volumes are organised geographically exploring the evolution of hominins and their expansion from Africa as well as the formation of states and development in each region of different technologies such as seafaring metallurgy and food production The Cambridge World Prehistory reveals a rich and complex history of the world It will be an invaluable resource for any student or scholar of archaeology and related disciplines looking to research a particular topic tradition region or period within prehistory

Horticultural Reviews, Volume 46 Ian Warrington, 2018-11-13 Horticultural Reviews presents state of the art reviews on topics in horticultural science and technology covering both basic and applied research Topics covered include the horticulture of fruits vegetables nut crops and ornamentals These review articles written by world authorities bridge the gap between the specialized researcher and the broader community of horticultural scientists and teachers

Theory in the Pacific, the Pacific in Theory Tim Thomas, 2020-07-27 Theory in the Pacific the Pacific in Theory explores the role of theory in Pacific archaeology and its interplay with archaeological theory worldwide The contributors assess how the practice of archaeology in Pacific contexts has led to particular types of theoretical enquiry and interest and more broadly how the Pacific is conceptualised in the archaeological imagination Long seen as a laboratory environment for the testing and refinement of social theory the Pacific islands occupy a central place in global theoretical discourse This volume highlights this role through an exploration of how Pacific models and exemplars have shaped and continue to shape approaches to the archaeological past The authors evaluate key theoretical perspectives and explore current and future directions in Pacific archaeology In doing so attention is paid to the influence of Pacific people and environments in motivating and shaping theory building Theory in the Pacific the Pacific in Theory makes a significant contribution to our understanding of how theory develops attuned to the affordances and needs of specific contexts and how those contexts promote reformulation and development of theory elsewhere It will be fascinating to scholars and archaeologists interested in the Pacific region as well as students of wider archaeological theory

Androgynous Objects Maureen A. MacKenzie, 2019-01-25 Androgynous Objects explores the way meaning is encoded in material culture by focusing on the androgynous symbolism of the looped string bag or bilum of the Telefola people of Central New Guinea The web of meanings woven into the bag is shown to extend beyond women's lives and bodies It is open to manipulation and reformation in a variety of contexts and is used by both Telefola women and men to explore and so explain the complexities and ambiguities inherent in their social life

Shared Wealth and Symbol Lenore Manderson, 1986-12-26 This 1987 volume brought together for the first time a range of essays on the anthropology of food in Oceania and Southeast Asia The essays reflect research in the field primarily that undertaken by Australian scholars The volume focuses on four main concerns factors that influence the production of food and dietary behaviour the way in which people think and speak about diet and nutrition including concepts of hunger and the classification of foods infant feeding practice including the promotion of bottle feeding and the roles of government agencies and multinational corporations The regional focus of the volume also allows for discussion of common trends especially those that have arisen as a result of societies in the region having been incorporated into the world economy Applicable elsewhere in the world the volume offers a basis for a comparative analysis of food in culture and society Environmental Impact of Multilateral Development Bank-funded Projects United States.
