With a Foreword by

DAVID B. HERSHENSON

*Regina College of Saint Joseph University
Boston, Connecticut
Boston, Massachusetts*

There, at last, is the book for which the youth counselor, counseling professional, has been waiting. It is the up-to-date, comprehensive and extensive text devoted to understanding the theory and practice of placement and placement counseling for disabled persons. Finally, the authors not only present major and yet unanswered theoretical questions, and they pose key questions that are unanswered in the literature of the field. They also review pertinent laws and legislative trends, describe coverage of placement counseling in various textbooks, the program and the counselor's role, present a new, exciting, pragmatic, didactic, or theoretical approach to the placement approach to placement counseling, detail a new approach to the field of work, and present a unique perspective on the field of placement counseling for disabled persons.
