What Shall We Tell the Children? Stuart J. Foster, Keith A. Crawford, 2006-04-01 The pages of this book illustrate that as instruments of socialization and sites of ideological discourse textbooks are powerful artefacts in introducing young people to a specific historical cultural and socioeconomic order Crucially exploring the social construction of school textbooks and the messages they impart provides an important context from within which to critically investigate the dynamics underlying the cultural politics of education and the social movements that form it and which are formed by it The school curriculum is essentially the knowledge system of a society incorporating its values and its dominant ideology The curriculum is not our knowledge born of a broad hegemonic consensus rather it is a battleground in which cultural authority and the right to define what is labelled legitimate knowledge is fought over As each chapter in this book illustrates curriculum as theory and practice has never been and can never be divorced from the ethical economic political and cultural conflicts of society which impact so deeply upon it We cannot escape the clear implication that questions about what knowledge is of most worth and about how it should be organized and taught are problematic contentious and very serious

Conceiving People Daniel Groll, 2021-08-24 Each year tens of thousands of children are conceived with donated gametes sperm or eggs Some know the identity of their donors Others never will Questions about what donor conceived people should know about their genetic progenitors are significant for literally millions of people including donor conceived people their parents and donors But the practice of gamete donation also provides a vivid occasion for thinking about questions that matter to everyone What is the value of knowing who your genetic progenitors are How are our identities bound up with knowing where we come from In Conceiving People Identity Genetics and Gamete Donation Daniel Groll argues that people who plan to create a child with donated gametes should choose a donor whose identity will be made available to the resulting child This is not Groll argues because having genetic knowledge is fundamentally important Rather it is because donor conceived people are likely to really care about having genetic knowledge and parents should care about what their kids care about The Kindergarten-primary Magazine Bertha
