Shape Of The Turtle Myth Art Cosmos:

The Shape of the Turtle Sarah Allan, 1991-02-21 Many Chinese philosophic concepts derive from an ancient cosmology. This work is the first reconstruction of the mythic thought of the Shang Dynasty ca 1700-1100 B.C. which laid the foundation for later Chinese patterns of thought. Allan regards the myth cosmology, divination, sacrificial ritual, and art of the Shang as different manifestations of a common religious system, and each is examined in turn, building up a coherent and consistent picture. Although primarily concerned with the Shang, this work also describes the manner in which Shang thought was transformed in the later textual tradition.

Of Tripod and Palate R. Sterckx, 2005-10-06 Attitudes toward food and commensality constituted a central fiber in the social, religious, and political fabric of ancient Chinese society. The offering of sacrifices, the banqueting of guests, and the ritual preparation, prohibition, or consumption of food and drink were central elements in each of China's three main religious traditions: the Classicist Confucian tradition, religious Daoism, and Buddhism. What links late Shang and Zhou bronze vessels to Buddhist dietary codes or Daoist recipes for immortality is a poignant testimony that culinary activity, fasting and feasting governed not only human relationships but also fermented the communication between humans and the spirit world. In Of Tripod and Palate, leading scholars examine the relationship between secular and religious food culture in ancient China from various perspectives.

History of Science, History of Text Karine Chemla, 2005-08-01
Two main interacting ways they constitute that with which exploration into problems or questions is carried out. But they also constitute that which is exchanged between scholars or in other terms that which is shaped by one or by some for use by others. In these various dimensions, texts obviously depend on the means and technologies available for producing, reproducing, using, and organizing writings. In this regard, the contribution of a history of text is essential in helping us approach the various historical contexts from which our sources originate. However, there is more to it. While shaping texts as texts, the practitioners of the sciences may create new textual resources that intimately relate to the research carried on. One may think, for instance, of the process of introduction of formulas in mathematical texts. This aspect opens up a whole range of extremely interesting questions to which we will return at a later point. But practitioners of the sciences also rely on texts produced by themselves or others which they bring into play in various ways. More generally, they make use of textual resources of every kind that is available to them, reshaping them, restricting or enlarging them. Among these, one can think of ways of naming, syntax of statements or grammatical analysis, literary techniques, modes of shaping texts or parts of text, genres of text, and so on. In this sense, the practitioners depend on and draw on the textual cultures available to the social and professional groups to which they belong.

Buried Ideas Sarah Allan, 2015-10-21
Four Warring States texts discovered during recent decades challenge longstanding understandings of Chinese intellectual history. The discovery of previously unknown philosophical texts from the Axial Age is revolutionizing our understanding of Chinese intellectual history. Buried Ideas presents and discusses four texts found on brush-written slips of bamboo and their seemingly unprecedented political philosophy. Written in the regional script of Chu during the Warring States period (475–221 BCE), all of the works discuss Yao's abdication to Shun and are related to but differ significantly from the core texts of the classical period such as the Mencius and Zhuangzi. Notably, these works evince an unusually meritocratic stance and two even advocate abdication over hereditary succession as a political ideal. Sarah Allan includes full English translations and her own modern character editions of the four works examined: Tang Yizhi, Dao Zigao, Rongchengshi, and Baoxun. In addition, she provides an introduction to Chu script bamboo slip manuscripts and the complex issues inherent in deciphering them.
