Forgeries of Memory and Meaning Cedric J. Robinson, 2012-09-01 Cedric J Robinson offers a new understanding of race in America through his analysis of theater and film of the early twentieth century He argues that economic political and cultural forces present in the eras of silent film and the early talkies firmly entrenched limited representations of African Americans Robinson grounds his study in contexts that illuminate the parallel growth of racial beliefs and capitalism beginning with Shakespearean England and the development of international trade He demonstrates how the needs of American commerce determined the construction of successive racial regimes that were publicized in the theater and in motion pictures particularly through plantation and jungle films In addition to providing new depth and complexity to the history of black representation Robinson examines black resistance to these practices Whereas D W Griffith appropriated black minstrelsy and romanticized a national myth of origins Robinson argues that Oscar Micheaux transcended uplift films to create explicitly political critiques of the American national myth Robinson's analysis marks a new way of approaching the intellectual political and media racism present in the beginnings of American narrative cinema
