Waiting for the End Earl G. Ingersoll,2007 Waiting for the End examines two dozen contemporary novels within the context of a half century of theorizing about the function of ending in narrative That theorizing about ending generated a powerful dynamic a quarter century ago with the advent of feminist criticism of masculinist readings of the role played by ending in fiction Feminists such as Theresa de Lauretis in 1984 and more famously Susan Winnett in her 1991 PMLA essay Coming Unstrung were leading voices in a swelling chorus of theorist pointing out the masculinist bias of ending in narrative With the entry of feminist readings of ending it became inevitable that criticism of fiction would become gendered through the recognition of difference transcending a simple binary of female male to establish a spectrum of masculine to feminine endings regardless of the sex of the writer Accordingly Waiting for the End examines pairs of novels one pair by Margaret Atwood and one by Ian McEwan to demonstrate how a writer can offer endings at either end of the gender spectrum

Running into the Arms of Love Amber Shields,2015-06-30 This is a true story of a woman who grew up trying to buy love and to be accepted She ran from her troubles She ran from men She ran from the Lord The more she ran the more trouble she got into until she fell into a pit which was her death bed However the Lord delivered her She is no longer running because she ran into the right hands the Lords This story will touch your heart This story will show you what God can do He can turn a tragedy into a triumph He can turn your life completely around like the fairy tales of Cinderella and Beauty and the Beast Only this is the real life of a woman who once was blind but now she sees
