Expertise Editors and authors are scientists and oncologists specializing in cancer immunotherapy involved in scientific discovery from the early stage of immune checkpoint inhibitors to today's patient care. Their insights, expertise, and experience guarantee high quality and authority in the science, medicine, and practice of cancer immunotherapy. Patient friendly. This book is written specifically for cancer patients considering or undergoing immunotherapy. As an educational tool, this book will help the reader to understand the underlying science, balance the risks and benefits based on both research and clinical facts, and make an informed decision regarding their treatment options. Disease Specificity: Cancer is a complicated disease involving multiple stages and pathology. Its response to immunotherapy is individualized and varies depending on cancer types. The authors' expertise in treating different types of cancers, including melanoma, lung, kidney, bladder, breast, and lymphoma, provides disease-specific insights in applying immunotherapy to each disease. State of the Art: This edition has been comprehensively updated to reflect recent advances, including detailed coverage of the latest therapies like CAR T, TIL, immune checkpoint inhibitors, and bispecific T cell engaging antibodies, and dedicated chapters on breast cancer, solid organ transplant recipients, GI and genitourinary malignancies, and resistant cancer. Aimed at patients and non-oncologist care providers as a resource when seeking immunotherapy as a treatment option. Detailed focus on various cancers provides disease-specific insights, clinical studies, and risk-benefit analysis. Comprehensively updated to address the latest immunotherapies and expanded coverage of disease-specific scenarios.

Autophagy in Immune Response: Impact on Cancer Immunotherapy Salem Chouaib, 2020-05-11. Autophagy in Immune Response: Impact on Cancer Immunotherapy focuses on the status and future directions of autophagy with respect to different aspects of its interaction with the immune system and immunotherapy. The book takes scientific research in autophagy a step further by presenting reputable information on the topic and offering integrated content with advancements in autophagy from cell biology and biochemical research to clinical treatments. This book is a valuable source for cancer researchers, oncologists, graduate students, and several members of the biomedical field who are interested in learning more on the relationship between autophagy and immunotherapies. Presents updated knowledge on autophagy at the basic level and its potential use in cancer treatment. Offers the first book to cover autophagy at the interface of cell biology, immunology, and tumor biology. Provides a wealth of information on the topic in a coherent and comprehensive collection of contributions by world-renowned scientists and investigators.

Investigating the Interplay Between Tumor Mutations, Immune Evasion, and Targeted Therapy Resistance Shanye Yin, Guangchuang Yu, Yinghao Wu, 2025-04-29. The field of cancer research has been significantly focused on understanding the complex interplay between tumor mutations, immune evasion, and resistance to targeted therapies. Tumors are known to harbor a multitude of genetic alterations that not only drive their initiation, growth, and progression but also provide them with a selective advantage leading to immune evasion and therapy resistance The tumor microenvironment further complicates this interaction by influencing the relationship between tumor cells and the immune system thereby affecting treatment outcomes Despite the current understanding of these processes there are still gaps in knowledge particularly in understanding how specific tumor mutations contribute to immune evasion and therapy resistance The primary aim of this research topic is to delve deeper into the intricate relationship between tumor mutations immune evasion and targeted therapy resistance The goal is to understand how oncogenic mutations result in the production of neoantigens that can elicit an immune response and how tumor cells have evolved mechanisms to evade this immune surveillance This includes the downregulation of antigen presentation machinery upregulation of immune checkpoint molecules and recruitment of immunosuppressive cells Furthermore the research aims to investigate how these immune evasion mechanisms confer resistance to targeted therapies which have revolutionized cancer treatment by selectively inhibiting key signaling pathways driving tumor growth
