Lawyer for the Cat Lee Robinson, 2016-05-10 Sally Baynard is one of the best lawyers around. In the years since her divorce from Family Court Judge Joe Baynard, she dedicated herself to representing the worst and craziest Charleston, S.C. had to offer. But none of the murderers, burglars, or angry divorcing clients compared to Sherman the dog, her ex-husband appointed her to represent. Although the miniature Schnauzer found his way into her heart and brought his handsome vet Tony along too, his case was a thorny one. With that business out of the way, Sally is happy to move back to non-canine clients until a probate judge asks her about a cat. Agreeing to represent Beatrice, a black cat who's the beneficiary of a multi-million dollar trust and a plantation, Sally must put her wit, charm, and brains to the test, choosing among three colorful potential caregivers while dodging the former owner's angry son. Meanwhile, Sally must juggle the demands of the court with those of her aging mother and make a decision about Tony who wants to get more serious.

Lee Robinson's Lawyer for the Cat is Southern women's fiction at its most delightful, featuring strong smart characters, a charming setting, and plenty of adorable critters.

Cora the Cat: On Loan from God Barbara Morris, 2023-08-01 About two years ago when God looked around and spied Cora, a ragamuffin orphaned cat, and Barbara, a disheveled, lonely 90-year-old widow, he knew there was a need for a call to action. It must have broken his kind heart to see Cora's once lustrous fur now dull and matted from weeks of living alone in a dark closet and to despair at Barbara's tangled, unbrushed hair slouched shoulders and worn and saggy jammies. God knew how uncomfortable, itchy, and grimy these two must feel but he knew they needed more than a bath and cosmetic fixes. More than anything, this desultory duo needed compassion, friendship, love, warmth, understanding, and heaps of hugs. In short, they needed each other. And so God gave them as gifts to each other. Clearly, they went together like peanut butter and jelly or gin and tonic. It was easy, not just because these were divine actions.

but because Cora and Barbara lived in a retirement community on the same floor the 13th and same hallway Cora was hiding in the closet because Marjorie her owner was dying and the apartment was crammed with hospital equipment nurses aides family and friends Barbara was living a life of boredom alone at the other end of the hall because Ward her husband of 56 years a retired naval officer had suddenly died During their married life Barbara and Ward had joyfully traveled the world to 100 countries Now mourning and alone Barbara had no urge to travel She wasn't pleased to admit it to herself but she had no purpose in life Well God took care of that by sending Cora down the hall to be cared for when Marjorie died She was a gift from God to Barbara What a gift A ramshackle little cat who was not only orphaned but deaf Well so was Barbara What a pair
