Measurement Of Audition Vision In The First Year Of Postnatal Life A Methodological Overview:

Measurement of Audition and Vision in the First Year of Postnatal Life Gilbert Gottlieb, Norman A.

Krasnegor, 1985-01-01 This volume is based upon a conference which brought together a group of leading developmental researchers to assess state of the art methodology for measuring audition and vision during the first year of life The volume is primarily aimed at providing an overview of current methods used to assess hearing and vision Both behavioral and physiological approaches are examined in detail with a view toward providing the reader with a critical understanding of the methods including their strengths and weaknesses It is essential reading for those interested in the development of sensory systems

The Development of Speech Perception Judith Claire Goodman, Howard C. Nusbaum, 1994 This comprehensive collection of current research in the development of speech perception and perceptual learning documents the striking changes that take place both in early childhood and throughout life and speculates about the mechanisms responsible for those changes The findings reported from this rich and active field address the role of growing linguistic knowledge and experience and demonstrate that speech perception develops in a bidirectional interplay with several levels of linguistic structure and cognitive processes Examining transitions in the perceptual processing of speech from infancy to adulthood as well as what causes these transitions the contributors take up a broad range of issues that are central to constructing a theory of speech perception and to understanding the development of this ability These include the nature of infants early sensory proficiencies how these skills come to support the recognition of linguistic units developmental differences in the representation and processing of linguistic units the acquisition of early word patterns and a phonological system and the mechanisms behind perceptual learning The Development of Speech Perception is unique in attempting to integrate research involving infants young children and adults and in its thorough treatment of developmental issues in speech perception It systematically explores how adult perceptual abilities begin to develop from early infant capabilities and in doing so addresses several levels of linguistic processing

Infant Assessment M. Virginia Wyly, 2018-02-12 Infancy is one of the most fascinating periods in the human life cycle In two short years infants become thinking speaking social beings As this book explains over the past three decades researchers and clinicians have developed an array of assessment methods for measuring infant development and diagnosing infants with developmental delays The field of infant assessment has broadened from a major focus on cognitive development to an emphasis on parent infant interaction play assessment and newer strategies that involve naturalistic observations Because of the need to look at the whole infant assessment often involves multiple disciplines The interdisciplinary approach measures the infant domains of motor skills cognitive abilities and language acquisition and evaluates the infant s psychosocial environment The chapters in this volume provide a solid overview of the current trends in infant assessment measures and procedures The book can be used in undergraduate and graduate infant development courses and for advanced courses in infant assessment

Core Readings in Psychiatry Michael

H. Sacks, William H. Sledge, 1995 Core Readings in Psychiatry Second Edition stands as an essential text for the academic. The contributors are distinguished experts who have a firm grasp of the relevant and classical citations in specific areas of psychiatry. In the intervening 8 years since the first edition the profession's knowledge base has changed immensely. Included in this second edition are numerous citations and new topics such as AIDS neuropsychiatry, models of psychoanalytic thought, child development and medical economics. The book will open bibliographic doors for the academician as well as for the provider, manager and consumer of psychiatric services and knowledge. It is designed to be an introduction and guide to the entire psychiatric literature.

Infants' Sense of People Maria Legerstee, 2005-12-08. Infants' Sense of People focusses on infants during their first year of life, exploring how they begin to think about other people, their feelings, emotions and intentions, and how they become aware of these aspects of their own development. Drawing on a broad range of research and developmental theory, Maria Legerstee takes the view that infants have an innate sense of people at birth which is activated through sympathetic emotions. She questions the idea that infants use physical parameters such as contingencies or motion to distinguish people from objects and rejects the assumption that infants are mechanical creatures before they become psychological ones. She argues persuasively that before infants learn to speak, interactions with others are possible because infants have a primitive pre-linguistic theory of mind. This accessible book provides a valuable synthesis of current thinking on early social and cognitive development and the origins of theory of mind.

Percepts, Concepts and Categories B. Burns, 1992-10-09. The most important distinction derived from the computational view of thought is between structures and processes. So proclaimed Farah and Kosslyn in 1982, arguing that structures and processes cannot be examined in isolation and concluding that converging operations are required to isolate the structure-process pair that can explain a particular finding. The distinction between structure and process within the study of percepts, concepts and categories is considered in depth in this volume, with penetrating commentaries by fellow authors concluding each chapter. This interesting format achieves a broad coverage of the various aspects and implications of the structure-process distinction. It affords a salient indication of the diversity of positions as to the description and utility of distinguishing structures and processors. At the same time it reveals that researchers specializing in areas of study ranging from simple structure and process involved in perceptual organization and texture to complex structure and process associated with reading graphs and chess expertise do utilize such a distinction in similar ways. The analysis is organized into four major parts within the book: Early Visual Representation and Processing; Percepts, Concepts, Categories and Development; Categories, Concepts and Learning; and Higher Order Representation and Processing.

Focus on Phonological Acquisition S. J. Hannahs, Martha Young-Scholten, 1997-01-01. The publication of this edited volume comes at a time when interest in the acquisition of phonology by both children learning a first language and adults learning a second is starting to swell. The ten contributions from established scholars and relative newcomers alike provide a comprehensive demonstration of the progress being made in the field through the theory based analysis of both spontaneous and experimental acquisition data involving a number of first and second languages including English French German Korean Polish and Spanish Aimed at those active in phonology and its acquisition yet written to be accessible to the non specialist as well the volume carefully lays out the various theoretical frameworks in which the authors work such as Feature Geometry Lexical Phonology Non Linear Phonology Prosodic Phonology and Optimality Theory Progress in infancy Research Harlene Hayne,Jeffrey Fagen,2014-03-18 The Progress in Infancy Research Series is dedicated to the presentation of innovative and exciting research on infants both human and animal Each volume in the series is designed to stand alone and contains autonomous chapters which are based on high quality programs of research with infants These chapters integrate the work of the authors with that of other experts working in the same or related areas The authors wish to present high quality critical syntheses bearing on infant perception and sensation learning and memory processes and other aspects of development This series will be a forum for the presentation of technological breakthroughs methodological advances and new integrations that might create platforms for future programmatic work on the complexities of infant behavior and development Each volume in the series is dedicated to an outstanding investigator whose research has illuminated the nature of infant behavior and development and whose contributions to the field have been of seminal importance Development of the Auditory System Edwin W.

Rubel,Richard R. Fay,2012-12-06 Extraordinary progress has been made in recent years in understanding the cellular and molecular basis of development This progress is having a strong influence on our knowledge of the auditory system From the molecular genetics of ear development to the ontogeny of auditory capability great inroads have been made The contributors to this volume on development of the auditory system have provided a detailed and integrated introduction to the behavioral anatomical and physiological changes that occur in the auditory system of developing animals About the editors Edwin W Rubel is Virginia Merrill Bloedel Professor of Hearing Sciences at the Virginia Merrill Bloedel Hearing Research Center at the University of Washington Arthur N Popper is Professor and Chair of the Department of Zoology at the University of Maryland Richard R Fay is Associate Director of the Parmlly Hearing Institute and Professor of Psychology at Loyola University of Chicago About the series The Springer Handbook of Auditory Research presents a series of synthetic reviews of fundamental topics dealing with auditory systems Each volume is independent and authoritative taken as a set this series will be the definitive resource in the field Perceptual Development Alan Slater,1998 The aim of this book is both to reflect current knowledge of perceptual development and to point to some of the many questions that remain unanswered The study of perceptual development is now a sophisticated science The majority of the chapters tell a fascinating detective story the way in which infants perceive and understand the world as they develop Each of the major sections is prefaced by introductory comments and the book will be useful for advanced undergraduates postgraduates researchers and other professionals who have an interest in early perceptual development and in infancy in general Early Childhood Development and Later Outcome Sabina Pauen,2012-10-08 Theories of infant cognition have transformed radically over the span of less than a century Once considered unintelligent infants are now described as partners in their own development Modern research analyzes the ways in which cognitive and social skills developed early in life help shape intelligence personality and achievement over time In Early Childhood Development and Later Outcome Sabina Pauen has compiled essays by international experts reflecting the state of infant cognition studies and developmental psychology These essays present cutting edge research on a broad range of topics of relevance to scientists teachers and policy makers alike The volume addresses current research on skill formation as well as longitudinal studies tracing achievement beyond childhood Collectively this work points the way toward approaches that will deepen our understanding of infant cognition and the profound consequences of early childhood development for future achievement

Language Development and Disorders W. Yule,M. Rutter,1987 Communication disabilities are common although their precise nature and degree of severity vary greatly among individuals They are among the most handicapping of disabilities because they isolate a person and in so doing restrict social educational and occupational opportunities One of the purposes of this book was to bring together theoretical practical and clinical knowledge from several disciplines that bear on language and communication into some reasonably accessible form The intent is to provide a broad and multi faceted view of language development and language disorders Thus contributions from education linguistics psychology pediatrics psychiatry neurology neuropsychology and speech therapy are included They describe our current knowledge of language development suggest classifications for language pathology outline what is known of the epidemiology of language difficulties consider assessment and therapy alternative communication systems and the impact of the new technology on communication aids The variety of perspectives that it provides will make it particularly useful to the range of specialists who are concerned with the development of communication skills and language disorders development Development of Mental Representation Irving E. Sigel, 2013-06-17 There is a general and extensive literature in the development of representational thought and symbolic processes because of its centrality in human evolution. However, the umbrella of science and its method does not necessarily lead to a coherent conceptual model or agreements among scholars. These basic differences among various disciplines have led to the creation of new and exciting realms of research. This book considers how representational or symbolic thought develops for children's use in a wide array of these circumstances.

Action Meets Word Kathy Hirsh-Pasek, Roberta Michnick Golinkoff, 2010-04-29 Although there has been a surge in our understanding of children's vocabulary growth, theories of word learning lack a primary focus on verbs and adjectives. Researchers throughout the world recognize how our understanding of language acquisition can be at best partial if we cannot comprehend how verbs are learned. This volume represents a proliferation of research on the frontier of early verb learning, enhancing our understanding of the building blocks of language and considering new ways to assess key aspects of language growth.
