Mechanisms Of Cell Motility Molecular Aspects Of Contractility:

Mechanisms of Cell Motility Peter Sheterline, 1983      Myosins James Sellers, 1999-05-13 Myosins are a diverse superfamily of molecular motor proteins which share the ability to reversibly bind actin and hydrolyse MgATP They are capable of either translocating actin filaments or translocating vesicles or other cargo on fixed actin filaments There are currently 15 distinct classes in the myosins superfamily based on sequence homology Myosin II and myosin I proteins are familiar and well studied while Classes III XV are less well characterized All myosins examined to date are multimeric and appear to possess at least three functional domains a head neck and tail Myosins second edition explores the structure and functional properties of myosins their regulation and mutational analysis It has been thoroughly updated since the first edition was published in 1995 including sections on the three additional classes defined by new sequences information provided by the crystal structure of seven new Dictyostelium motor domains and data from new techniques such as molecular imaging and tagging proteins with GFP 20 The three human diseases that are now known to be linked to mutations in different myosin heavy or light chains are also covered including more than 50 mutations associated with hypertrophic cardiomyopathy      Research Awards Index , 1989      Subject Index of Current Research Grants and Contracts

Edward Gasque, Clayton Edward Gasque, 1989      Muscle Contraction and Cell Motility H. Sugi, 2012-12-06 This volume intends to provide a comprehensive overview on the mechanisms of muscle contraction and non muscle cell motility at the molecular and cellular level not only for investigators in these fields but also for general readers interested in these topics A most attractive feature of various living organisms in the animal and plant kingdoms is their ability to move In spite of a great diversity in the structure and function of various motile systems it has frequently been assumed since the nineteenth century that all kinds of motility are essentially the same Based on this assumption some investigators in the nineteenth century thought that the mechanisms of motility could better be studied on primitive non muscle motile systems such as amoeboid movement rather than on highly specialized muscle cells Contrary to their expectation however the basic mechanisms of motility have been revealed solely by investigations on vertebrate skeletal muscles since a monumental discovery of Szent Gyorgyi and his coworkers in the early 1940s that muscle contraction results from the interaction between two different contractile proteins actin and myosin coupled with ATP hydrolysis      Nature and Function of Cytoskeletal Proteins in Motility and Transport Akademie der Wissenschaften und der Literatur
