Mechanisms of Learning and Motivation A. Dickinson, R. A. Boakes, 2014-01-14 This volume consists of a series of chapters honoring a Polish psychologist and neurophysiologist who died in 1973 Although his name was familiar to all of the contributors many had had no personal contact with him and had gained acquaintance with his ideas only through his publications

Learning, Motivation, and Their Physiological Mechanisms Neal E. Miller, 2017-07-14 Neal E Miller's pioneering work in experimental psychology has earned him worldwide respect This second in a two volume collection of his work brings together forty three of Miller's most important and representative essays on learning motivation and their physiological mechanisms They were selected on the basis of their current relevance and their historical significance at the time they were published In order to emphasize the main themes essays on a given topic have been grouped together

Learning Motivation and Their Physiological Mechanisms begins when the author first discovered the thrill of designing and executing experiments to get clear cut answers concerning the behavior of children and of rats The first study was one of the earliest ones on the behavioral effects of the recently synthesized male hormone testosterone The second was one of the earliest studies demonstrating the value of using a variety of behavioral techniques to investigate the motivational effects of a physiological intervention The next studies investigated the satisfying and rewarding effects of food or water in the stomach versus in the mouth and the thirst inducing and reducing effects of hyper and hypotonic solutions respectively injected into the brain The last study describes a technique devised for extending the analysis of the mechanism of hunger to the effects of humoral factors in the blood The study is completed with an examination of trial and error learning that was motivated by direct electrical stimulation of the brain and rewarded by the termination of such stimulation Other studies show that the stimulation via such electrodes not only elicits eating but also has the principal motivational characteristics of normal hunger The conclusion deals with a series of experiments that overthrows strong traditional beliefs by proving that glandular and visceral responses mediated by the autonomic nervous system are subject to instrumental learning which can be made quite specific

Mechanisms of Learning and Motivation Anthony Dickinson, Robert A. Boakes, 1979 The Oxford Handbook of Group and Organizational Learning Linda Argote, John M. Levine, 2020-01-02 Groups and organizations vary dramatically in their ability to learn Some acquire substantial knowledge as a function of experience while others do not In groups learning can occur at the level of the individual member and or the group as a whole In organizations learning can occur at both of these levels as well as that of the wider collective Besides varying in the amount and kind of information they acquire groups and organizations also vary regarding their success in retaining knowledge and transferring it to other units In general groups and organizations that are proficient in acquiring retaining and transferring knowledge are more productive and more enduring than their less able counterparts The goal of this handbook is to bring together cutting edge theoretical and empirical work on group and organizational learning by leading scholars from several disciplines Because many of the same processes influence learning in groups and organizations including both kinds of learning in the same volume has the potential to facilitate the integration of knowledge and the cross fertilization of ideas These benefits are reciprocal in that research at the group level can shed light on how organizations learn whereas research at the organizational level can illuminate how groups learn By clarifying similarities and differences in the processes that underlie learning in groups and organizations the handbook advances understanding of the causes and consequences of learning in collectives of varying size and complexity

Research Grants Index National Institutes of Health (U.S.). Division of Research Grants, 1972 The Practice of Constructivism in Science Education Kenneth G. Tobin, 2012-11-12 This volume provides a needed elaboration of theories and potential applications of constructivism in science education Although the term constructivism is used widely there has been a dearth of materials to guide science educators concerning the potential of constructivism to influence what is done in the field In fact there has been a tendency for constructivism to be viewed as a method that can be used in a classroom This view tends to diminish the power of constructivism as a way of thinking about education and in particular about science education The chapters in this book address the need to document the theoretical roots of constructivism and to describe how practitioners have applied constructivist oriented beliefs in the practice of K 12 teaching of science and mathematics as well as teacher education Not only does this book contain different theoretical perspectives on constructivism but it also features a chapter that critiques constructivism as an epistemology Specific topics covered include cooperative learning the negotiation of meaning problem centered learning social construction of knowledge science in culturally diverse settings curriculum planning and implementation and instructional technology Issues associated with the preparation and enhancement of science teachers and the reform of science education are also explored Basic Processes of Learning, Cognition, and Motivation S. M. Cormier, 2014-04-04 First published in 1986 The main objective of this book is to provide a hard headed theoretical integration of several different major areas of research on learning cognition and motivation in humans and other mammals By hard headed the author simply means that the concepts were generated from empirical data and are testable Since an integrative theory must of necessity integrate apparent diversity such an approach involves the identification and description of the most fundamental factors structural processes underlying the observed capacities of humans and animals in the domain of learning and motivation Blended Learning: Engaging Students in the New Normal Era Richard Chen Li, Simon K. Active Learning: Theoretical Perspectives, Empirical Studies and Design Profiles Robert Cassidy, Elizabeth S. Charles, James D. Slotta, Nathaniel Lasry, 2019-07-11 This book represents the emerging efforts of a growing international network of researchers and practitioners to promote the development and uptake of evidence based pedagogies in higher education at something a level approaching large scale impact By offering a communication venue that attracts and enhances much needed partnerships among practitioners and researchers in pedagogical innovation we aim to change the conversation and focus on how we work and learn together i e extending the implementation and knowledge of co design methods In this first edition of our Research Topic on Active Learning we highlight two of the three types of publications we wish to promote First are studies aimed at understanding the pedagogical designs developed by practitioners in their own practices by bringing to bear the theoretical lenses developed and tested in the education research community These types of studies constitute the practice pull that we see as a necessary counterbalance to knowledge push in a more productive pedagogical innovation ecosystem based on research practitioner partnerships Second are studies empirically examining the implementations of evidence based designs in naturalistic settings and under naturalistic conditions Interestingly the teams conducting these studies are already exemplars of partnerships between researchers and practitioners who are uniquely positioned as in between straddling the two worlds As a result these publications represent both the rigours of research and the pragmatism of reflective practice In forthcoming editions we will add to this collection a third type of publication design profiles These will present practitioner developed pedagogical designs at varying levels of abstraction to be held to scrutiny amongst practitioners instructional designers and researchers alike We hope by bringing these types of studies together in an open access format that we may contribute to the development of new forms of practitioner researcher interactions that promote co design in pedagogical innovation
