Topical Issues in Communications and Media Research Kwamena Kwansah-Aidoo,2005 The field of communication and media has never been more exciting and the vigorous activity in this area over the past three decades bears testimony to this. The excitement is due to a number of developments in the vast and sometimes very different areas that fall under the common rubric of communication and media studies. This book seeks to interrogate a number of concerns and issues in communications and media research. This volume documents some of the current trends and developments, challenges and future prospects of communication and media research. In doing so it presents a broad basis for understanding the issues, technologies, theories, applications, opportunities and challenges faced by communication researchers and scholars in the new media environment of the 21st century.

Global Media Policy in the New Millennium Marc Raboy, 2002. This book traces the emergence of Britain's fifth and last terrestrial channel together with the changing broadcast environment in which it has evolved. Drawing on interviews with key TV personnel it presents an historical analysis of Channel 5 from conception through to the end of the fifth year of transmission.

Media Law in Australia Lesley Hitchens, 2020-05-21. Derived from the renowned multi-volume International Encyclopaedia of Laws, this analysis of media law in Australia surveys the massively altered and enlarged legal landscape traditionally encompassed in laws pertaining to freedom of expression and regulation of communications. Everywhere a shift from mass media to mass self-communication has put enormous pressure on traditional law models. An introduction describing the main actors and salient aspects of media markets is followed by in-depth analyses of print media, radio and television broadcasting, the Internet, commercial communications, political advertising, concentration in media markets and media regulation. Among the topics that arise for discussion are privacy, cultural policy, protection of minors, competition policy, access to digital gateways, protection of journalists' sources, standardization and interoperability and liability of intermediaries. Relevant case law is considered throughout as are various ethical codes. A clear, comprehensive overview of media legislation, case law and doctrine presented from the practitioner's point of view, this book is a valuable time-saving resource for all concerned with media and communication freedom. Lawyers representing parties with interests in Australia will welcome this very useful guide and academics and researchers will appreciate its value in the study of comparative media law.

newmedia.com.au Trevor Barr, 2000-02-01. What is really happening in communications today? The Internet has emerged out of nowhere, television channels and newspapers struggle to get our attention. Telstra has become the star of the stock market and digital television is on the horizon. Almost every aspect of our lives has been infiltrated by communications. newmedia.com.au offers a rare understanding of the big picture. Australia's media, information technology and telecommunications are in a state of unprecedented change. Established players and industries have reinvented themselves and new power brokers have appeared from unexpected quarters. Yet what is driving these changes? Whose interests are served? And who benefits? Trevor Barr explores the radical changes in contemporary communications, the convergence of old media with new media, the role of communications in globalisation and the social dilemmas associated with new communications technology. He argues that it is vital that we prepare for the future individually and collectively.
