Communication Studies recent political developments towards an increasingly consolidated democratic system are of great interest. The comparison with Germany may seem unusual and asymmetrical. The countries differ with regard to the religious and cultural practices and media and social developments are neither intertwined nor similar at first glance. A closer look however reveals structural similarities between Germany and Indonesia dynamics and regressions of political transformation under pressure from radical political movements hyper modernization in parts of the economies and social life worlds of post modern urbanization a heritage of genocides and cultural struggles over the multi ethnic and multi religious fabrics of society. The book deals with the role media play in the course of these political economic and cultural transformations. Do they follow or lead the changes in political systems and societies? What can countries learn from each other if they step outside the usual ethnocentric comparisons and engage in a more intense global dialogue? The book is a groundbreaking endeavour in comparative Media and Communication Studies and brings together wellknown researchers from hitherto largely separated academic communities.

Media Policy Euromedia Research Group, 1998-09-24 The European media landscape is changing profoundly. In this wide ranging and timely text members of the Euromedia Research Group examine the ways in which national and supranational policy is reacting to these changes. The contributors consider the consequences for broadcasting systems of satellite and cable delivery the fate of public broadcasting under deregulation the changes currently affecting print media and newspapers the impact of media changes for political and social cultural life and the significance of the Internet the first true fruit of the telematic revolution in communication. The main themes of media policy analysis today are convergence concentration and commercialization and abundance through digitalization. Although media policy has changed drastically in its concerns and forms the authors here argue that the need for an effective public communication policy in our information society is as pressing now as it ever was.
