1: Preliminaries Marinus Anthony van der Sluijs,2019-01-01 Creation myths around the world reveal an intricate network of recurrent motifs Many of these are counterintuitive and not widely known describing a time when the sky was low the stars did not yet shine multiple suns appeared the moon was brighter than the sun no land existed deities and mortals maintained frequent contact a world axis in the form of a tree ladder or giant man connected the earth with the sky a devastating flood or fire ended the old order and so forth The present work in multiple volumes aims to find an origin for this cross culturally and internally consistent body of traditions in a series of extraordinary natural events relating especially to the earth s transition from the last glacial period to the Holocene This first volume sets the stage for the interdisciplinary hypothesis Essential lines of research receive a historical introduction comparative mythology catastrophism and the study of the mythical world axis in relation to the earth s rotation Various astronomical and meteorological interpretations that are not strictly catastrophist are explored for several types of myths about the sun the moon and the world axis but leave many of the most intriguing traditions unexplained It is argued that a structural core of the worldwide mythology of creation and destruction in which the cosmic axis takes pride of place points to a specific period of dramatic natural circumstances in real prehistoric time A new synopsis is provided of this universal mythological substrate It emerges that the mythical world axis cannot have been based on a single object seen or imagined at one of the poles as has usually been supposed This surprising conclusion paves the way for the innovative geomagnetic theory proposed in volume 2 Oral Traditions of Southeast

seem to survive with greater persistence than any other trait of primitive culture These beliefs lie at the base of nearly all religions and the myths in which the beliefs are preserved are the foundation of literature Therefore the preservation and study of origin myths are of much importance in the reconstruction of the history of humanity which is the chief aim of anthropology The peoples of the Philippines have rich and varied mythology yet little has been explored but which will one day command much attention Among the Christianized peoples of the plains the myths are preserved chiefly as folk tales but in the mountains their recitation and preservation are a real and living part of the people s daily religious life Very few of these myths are written the great majority are preserved by oral tradition Bizarrely this region s Mythology seems connected to various other world mythologies in some cases almost identical Until recent years it has been believed that all ancient records written in the syllabic alphabets which the Filipinos possessed at the time of the Spanish conquest had been lost
