Kalb, 1997 English for cultural tourism management and interpretation Raffaella Picello, 2017-09-01 Shaping the Surface Stephen Kite, 2022-11-17 Shaping the Surface explores the history of modern British architecture through the lens of surface materiality and decoration Picking up on a trait that art historian Nikolaus Pevsner first identified as a national mania for beautiful surface quality this book makes a new contribution to architectural history and visual culture in its detailed examination of the surfaces of British architecture from the middle of the 19th century up to the turn of the 21st century Tracing this continuing sensibility to surface all the way through to the modern era it explores how and why surface and materiality have featured so heavily in recent architectural tradition examining the history of British architecture through a selection of key cultural moments and movements from Romanticism and the Arts and Crafts to Brutalism High Tech Post Modernism Neo Vernacular and the New Materiality Embedded within the narrative is the question of whether such national characters can exist in architecture at all and indeed the extent to which it is possible to identify a British architectural consciousness in an architectural tradition characterised by its continuous importation of theories ideas materials and people from around the globe Shaping the Surface provides a deep critique and meditation on the importance of surface and materiality for architects designers and historians everywhere in Britain and beyond while it also serves as a thematic introduction to modern British architectural history with in depth readings of the works of many key British architects artists and critics from Ruskin and William Morris to Alison and Peter Smithson Eduardo Paolozzi Richard Rogers and Caruso St John

High Tech and High Heels in the Global Economy Carla Freeman,2000-03-15 High Tech and High Heels in the Global Economy is an ethnography of globalization positioned at the intersection between political economy and cultural studies Carla Freeman s fieldwork in Barbados grounds the processes of transnational capitalism production consumption and the crafting of modern identities in the lives of Afro Caribbean women working in a new high tech industry called informatics It places gender at the center of transnational analysis and local Caribbean culture and history at the center of global studies Freeman examines the expansion of the global assembly line into the realm of computer based work and focuses specifically on the incorporation of young Barbadian women into these high tech informatics jobs As such Caribbean women are seen as integral not simply to the workings of globalization but as helping to shape its very form Through the enactment of professionalism in both appearances and labor practices and by insisting that motherhood and work go hand in hand they re define the companies profile of ideal workers and create their own pink collar identities Through new modes of dress and imagemaking the informatics workers seek to distinguish themselves from factory workers and to achieve these new modes of consumption they engage in a wide array of extra income earning activities Freeman argues that for the new Barbadian pink collar workers the globalization of production cannot be viewed apart from the globalization of consumption In doing so she shows the connections between formal and informal economies and challenges long standing oppositions between first world consumers and third world producers as well as white collar and blue collar labor Written in a style that allows the voices of the pink collar workers to demonstrate the simultaneous burdens and pleasures of their work High Tech and High Heels in the Global Economy will appeal to scholars and students in a wide range of disciplines including anthropology cultural studies sociology women s studies political economy and Caribbean studies as well as labor and postcolonial studies
