Department of Labor, 1990 Glass Ceilings and Asian Americans Deborah Woo, 2000 Throughout the history of the United States fluctuations in cultural diversity immigration and ethnic group status have been closely linked to shifts in the economy and labor market Over three decades after the beginning of the civil rights movement and in the midst of significant socioeconomic change at the end of this century scholars search for new ways to describe the persistent roadblocks to upward mobility that women and people of color still encounter in the workforce In Glass Ceilings and Asian Americans Deborah Woo analyzes current scholarship and controversies on the glass ceiling and labor market discrimination in conjunction with the specific labor histories of Asian American ethnic groups She then presents unique in depth studies of two current sites a high tech firm and higher education to argue that a glass ceiling does in fact exist for Asian Americans both according to quantifiable data and to Asian American workers own perceptions of their workplace experiences Woo s studies make an important contribution to understanding the increasingly complex and subtle interactions between ethnicity and organizational cultures in today's economic institutions and labor markets      Publications of the U.S. Department of Labor, Subject Listing United States. Department of Labor, 1995      Women Leaders Genevieve H. Brown, Beverly Irby, Dr. Shirley A. Jackson, 2012-02-01 Women Leaders Advancing Careers recognizes that while the majority of students enrolled in educational leadership preparation programs continue to be women women's advancement to top school executive roles is still not comparable to that of men Despite significant gains in the past decade the biased treatment of women continues to be a barrier to their advancement to key administrative positions The authors in Women Leaders Advancing Careers have contributed significantly to the growing body of literature aimed at assisting the career advancement of women Their research indicates that the concepts presented herein are critical to women's leadership preparations advancement and success Women Leaders Advancing Careers melds history theory research and practice to provide guidance to aspiring women administrators in developing a career path and in attaining and successfully performing in executive roles

Departments of Labor, Health and Human Services, and Education, and Related Agencies Appropriations for Fiscal Year 1995 United States. Congress. Senate. Committee on Appropriations. Subcommittee on Departments of Labor, Health and Human Services, Education, and Related Agencies, 1994      Report of the Governor's Task Force on the Glass Ceiling Initiative Wisconsin. Governor's Task Force on the Glass Ceiling Initiative, 1993      Cracking the Glass Ceiling Carole K. Adair, 1999 Barriers which hinder career advancement of women are complex and varied They have become top agenda items for most corporations and the government The glass ceiling is a term that symbolizes a variety of barriers that prevent qualified individuals from advancing higher in their organization Although many women hold management positions few have made the breakthrough to top level positions To determine what conditions are required for women to attain top executive positions an ethnographic study was conducted at a hospital The study was limited to four women who held executive positions one associate administrator one interim associate administrator one director and the CEO An in depth data gathering technique using observation interviews and documentation was used to investigate factors such as education skills influences support barriers and corporate culture The findings revealed a having opportunities to be participating valued family members and to compete in activities while young helps girls to develop a sense of competence and mastery b education credential building experiences certain competencies and being willing to take risks are necessary for success c having certain attitudes and philosophies are crucial factors in their success d mentors network involvement and relationships with peers does affect mobility e the women did have a career plan not in the sense of a linear career plan but rather one in the form of the spiral career concept f the hospital is a structure which provides opportunities to develop careers g the women understand accept and have learned to adapt to the culture of the society in which they live and work h the women are savvy at expressing affirming and communicating the substance of their culture to others i the amount of prejudice a woman encountered depended upon several components and j the barriers to advancement experienced by the women do not confirm those discussed in the review of literature Further research is recommended on the qualifications of male and female CEOs educational programs most appropriate for female executives how successful female executives learned to deal with their barriers and why certain organizations do not have top female executives

Pipelines of Progress United States. Department of Labor,1992 The glass ceiling refers to those barriers that have prevented the advancement of women and minorities into the top levels of executive management in major U S corporations In 1991 the U S Department of Labor released a report describing the Glass Ceiling Initiative This document reports on what occurred in the year following the beginning of this initiative The overall message is that while progress has been made in the workplace by minorities and women the commitment and actions that led to the progress must be maintained and enhanced if the goal of full and equal employment opportunity is to be realized The report discusses recent research data on workplace advancement which show mixed results Also noted is Department of Labor data on federal contractors which show that minorities and women have made progress over the past 10 years Much of the report concerns the progress of those companies the Department of Labor has monitored through Glass Ceiling Initiative pilot reviews and compliance reviews These data are presented in anecdotal fashion highlighting a number of examples which show that glass ceiling barriers can be removed The report cites the following barriers to career advancement and notes that they warrant greater attention recruitment practices lack of opportunity to contribute and participate in corporate development practices general lack of corporate ownership of equal opportunity principles performance measures and mobility The following methods are cited as successful approaches to removing glass ceiling barriers tracking women and minorities with advancement potential ensuring access and visibility ensuring a bias free workplace and continued placement of women and minorities into entry level professional positions DB
