German Romanticism and Its Institutions Theodore Ziolkowski, 2021-03-09 Using an illuminating method that challenges the popular notion of Romanticism as aesthetic escapism Theodore Ziolkowski explores five institutions mining law madhouses universities and museums that provide the socio historical context for German Romantic culture He shows how German writers and thinkers helped to shape these five institutions all of which assumed their modern form during the Romantic period and how these social structures in turn contributed to major literary works through image plot character and theme Ziolkowski cannot fail to impress the reader with a breadth of erudition that reveals fascinating intersections in the life and works of an artist He conveys the sense of energy and idealism that fueled Schiller and Goethe Fichte and Hegel Hoffmann and Novalis Emily Grosholz The Hudson Review This book should be put in the hands of every student who is seriously interested in the subject and I cannot imagine a scholar in the field who will not learn from it and be delighted with it Hans Eichner Journal of English and Germanic Philology Ziolkowski is among those who go beyond lip service to the historical and are able to show concretely the ways in which generic and thematic intentions are inextricably enmeshed with local and specific institutional circumstances Virgil Nemoianu MLN

Purchasers can usually download a free scanned copy of the original book without typos from the publisher Not indexed Not illustrated 1914 edition Excerpt SECTION VIII THE SIDE LIGHTS Strictly speaking literary schools have not been numerous in Germany There have not been many instances where a number of poets more than two holding a common doctrine accepting the same teachings exhibiting in practice the same general methods and intellectual bent have banded together and made propaganda for a common cause The very fact that a man is a poet is proof positive that he is different from other men including other poets and there never were even two poets exactly or even nearly alike To have a successful school there must be good teamwork and to have this a long series of similarities on the part of the participants is necessary We can speak of the First Silesian School 1625 75 the Second Silesian School 1650 1700 the Göttingen School 1767 1800 Storm and Stress 1767 87 the Berlin Jena Romantic School 1798 1801 the Heidelberg Romantic School 1806 08 and Young Germany 1830 48 with more or less propriety and with that the list of schools is about complete Goethe and Schiller established a Classical School 1794 1805 at Weimar only in the sense that they wrote poetry of a high order which found many imitators and many more readers and admirers But it is with a school as with a triangle or with jealousy it requires three parts to complete it And then a school is unlike a triangle or jealousy in that more than three parts will tend to make it more nearly perfect more enduring and effective In the case of the twenty eight poets grouped under this rubric we have to do with a number of men each one of whom went his own way and accomplished something that makes him unforgettable They lived in the age of Romanticism and were not merely influenced
