

1. Sensation vs. Perception p. 132

The distinction between sensation and perception.

Sensation involves the stimulation of sensory organs, whereas perception involves the interpretation of sensory input. The two processes merge at the point where sensory receptors convert physical energy into neural impulses.

Sensation

Sensory organs absorb energy from physical stimuli in the environment.

Sensory receptors detect stimulus energies and convert them into neural impulses, which are sent to the brain.

Perception

The brain organizes this input and translates it into something meaningful.

Sensation Perception In The History Of:

Sensation and perception in the history of experimental psychology Edwin Garrigues Boring,1975 Sensation and Perception D. W. Hamlyn,2022-09-01 First published in 1961 Sensation and Perception aims to cast light upon the nature of perception itself This the author believes can be achieved only through an understanding of the concepts of sensation and perception A survey of the principal attempts to arrive at such an understanding brings out the fact that perception has most often been assimilated to sensation or judgment The author believes that both of these views are wrong but that an attention to the history of thought can provide an explanation of the temptation to accept them A final chapter gives the author s own views on the nature of sensation and perception As such it would be of interest both to philosophers and to those psychologists who are concerned with the nature of perception Active Perception in the History of

Philosophy José Filipe Silva,Mikko Yrjönsuuri,2014-03-18 The aim of the present work is to show the roots of the conception of perception as an active process tracing the history of its development from Plato to modern philosophy The contributors inquire into what activity is taken to mean in different theories challenging traditional historical accounts of perception that stress the passivity of percipients in coming to know the external world Special attention is paid to the psychological and physiological mechanisms of perception rational and non rational perception and the role of awareness in the perceptual process Perception has often been conceived as a process in which the passive aspects such as the reception of sensory stimuli were stressed and the active ones overlooked However during recent decades research in cognitive science and philosophy of mind has emphasized the activity of the subject in the process of sense perception often associating this activity to the notions of attention and intentionality Although it is recognized that there are ancient roots to the view that perception is fundamentally active the history remains largely unexplored The book is directed to all those interested in contemporary debates in the fields of philosophy of mind and cognitive psychology who would like to become acquainted with the historical background of active perception but for historical reliability the aim is to make no compromises Handbook
