The Search for the Absolute Jeffrey H Williams, 2020-03-26 History and archaeology tell us that when our far ancestors began to settle in localized groups, they codified their lives and experiences and formed a collective for mutual support. This proto-civilization would have arisen from each individual's questions about the world and their attempt to understand themselves and their place in the world. These groups or tribes evolved rules of conduct to facilitate communal living and made a calendar for the group's celebration of harvests and other events upon which the group was utterly dependent. This process of social evolution is the origin of religion and of a magical way of looking at Nature. Eventually, this developing worldview was also the origin of science, which is our investigation of Nature to understand something of what is happening around us and to use this knowledge to ensure our survival in a violent, indifferent Universe. After all, science and religion seek to answer the same question: Why and how is the natural world the way it is? This book seeks to show how science evolved from religion and magic in response to a need to understand Nature.

Fides and Secularity Emilio Di Somma,2018-11-15 This book wishes to talk about two main topics the Canadian political philosopher Charles Taylor and faith Taylor in his philosophical arguments on religion and secularity has adopted what I call the great prejudice on religion and secularity the two belong to utterly different spheres of human mind and sociality In this prejudice faith is used as a synonym of religion or belief and is understood as something that does not belong to the sphere of secularity My argument contradicts precisely this common belief Is faith more of an anthropological attitude towards reality than a religious one Can we criticize Taylor s philosophy on these grounds To develop my argument I will attempt to develop a dialogue between continental and Anglo American philosophers and theologians in the hope of convincing the readers that we should change radically the way we discuss faith religion and secularism
