Milton My Fathers Dog:

Milton, My Father's Dog Eric Copeland, 1994 A father's hilarious love for a dog and a boy's slow appreciation of that same dog Fraser has always wanted a dog but when Dad brings home a large sheepdog named Milton it is not the gentle puppy Fraser wanted far from it The new dog is a menace to Fraser knocking him down jumping all over him and dragging him along on their walks All the while Frasers dad thinks Milton can do no wrong He even builds a doghouse for Milton which the dog promptly destroys Could Milton ever be a pet for Fraser It is not many fathers who can see themselves through their childrens eyes but Eric Copeland succeeds in recreating how ridiculous and funny he looked to his son

Hands of My Father Myron Uhlberg, 2009-02-03 By turns heart tugging and hilarious Myron Uhlberg's memoir tells the story of growing up as the hearing son of deaf parents and his life in a world that he found unaccountably beautiful even as he longed to escape it Does sound have rhythm my father asked Does it rise and fall like the ocean Does it come and go like the wind Such were the kinds of questions that Myron Uhlberg's deaf father asked him from earliest childhood in his eternal quest to decipher and to understand the elusive nature of sound Quite a challenge for a young boy and one of many he would face Uhlberg's first language was American Sign Language the first sign he learned I love you But his second language was spoken English and no sooner did he learn it than he was called upon to act as his father's ears and mouth in the stores and streets of the neighborhood beyond their silent apartment in Brooklyn Resentful as he sometimes was of the heavy burdens heaped on his small shoulders he nonetheless adored his parents who passed on to him their own passionate engagement with life These two remarkable people married and had children at the absolute bottom of the Great Depression an expression of extraordinary optimism and typical of the joy and resilience they were able to summon at even the darkest of times From the beaches of Coney Island to Ebbets Field where he watches his father's hero Jackie Robinson play ball from the branch library above the local Chinese restaurant where the odor of chow mein rose from the pages of the books he devoured to the hospital ward where he visits his polio afflicted friend this is a memoir filled with stories about growing up not just as the child of two deaf people but as a book loving mischief making tree climbing kid during the remarkably eventful period that spanned the Depression the War and the early fifties From the Hardcover edition The World Through

Children's Books Susan Stan, 2002 The World through Children's Books is a valuable and easy to use tool for librarians teachers and others who seek to promote international understanding through children's literature The annotated bibliography organized geographically by world region and country contains nearly 700 books representing 73 countries Sponsored by the United States Board on Books for Young People USBBY A Butcher's Boy Mr. Barton Bauer, 2014-01-17 I killed my father I did not know it then but I know it now Thus begins Bart Bauer's memoir and his struggle to come to terms with a decision made in 1994 that hastened his father's death The 80 year old author looks back over his growing up years as the son of a small town butcher I was a willing assistant to my father Just about every day we killed something to meet the needs of our customers We slaughtered cattle in a one room unheated slaughterhouse In winter wearing blood encrusted coveralls we kept our hands warm handling steaming entrails In summer we worked bare chested when scalding hogs He recalls his father s passion for hunting fox and raccoon And his dad s love for his dogs and the tragedy that nearly occurred when a neighbor shot one of his beloved dogs Now an old man the author struggles with the mystery of death thinks about the deaths of family members and how they died and speculates on how he will die questioning the existence of a hereafter
