 Impossible Desire and the Limits of Knowledge in Renaissance Poetry examines the limits of embodiment knowledge and representation at a disregarded nexus the erotic carpe diem poem in early modern England These macabre seductions offer no compliments or promises but instead focus on the lovers anticipated decline and quite stunningly given the Reformation context humanity's relegation not to a Christian afterlife but to a Marvellian desert of vast Eternity In this way a poetic trope whose classical form was an expression of pragmatic Epicureanism became during the religious upheaval of the Reformation an unlikely but effective vehicle for articulating religious doubt Its ambitions were thus largely philosophical and came to incorporate investigations into the nature of matter time and poetic representation Renaissance seduction poets invited their auditors to participate in a dangerous intellectual game one whose primary interest was expanding the limits of knowledge The book theorizes how Renaissance lyric's own fragile relationship to materiality and time and its self-conscious relationship to making positioned it to grapple with these impossible metaphysical and representational problems Although attentive to poetics the book also challenges the commonplace view that the erotic invitation is exclusively a lyrical mode Carpe diem's revival in post-Reformation Europe portends its radicalization as debates between man and maid are dramatized in disputes between abstractions like chastity and material facts like death Offered here is thus a theoretical reconsideration of the generic parameters and aspirations of the carpe diem trope wherein questions about embodiment and knowledge are also investigations into the potentialities of literary form The Household Book of Poetry Charles Anderson Dana,1906
