Corrections United States. National Advisory Commission on Criminal Justice Standards and Goals,1973 The Commission recommends specific standards in pursuit of the achievement of six major goals for the improvement of the American correctional system The American correctional system today appears to offer minimum protection for the public and maximum harm to the offender The National Advisory Commission on Criminal Justice Standards and Goals in its report on corrections has proposed about 140 standards designed to change that situation The standards spell out in detail where why how and what improvements can and should be made in the corrections segment of the criminal justice system This report is a reference work for the correctional professional as well as for the interested layman Among its goals the commission urges that disparities in sentencing be removed and justice in corrections be upheld by measures guaranteeing offenders rights during and after incarceration The scope of corrections can and should be narrowed by diverting many juveniles and sociomedical cases alcoholics drug addicts prostitutes and the mentally disturbed to noncorrectional treatment programs and by decriminalizing certain minor offenses such as public drunkenness and vagrancy Another goal states that probation should become the standard criminal sentence retaining confinement chiefly for dangerous offenders and releasing a majority of offenders to improved and extended community based programs Corrections should undergo a planned integration into the total criminal justice system with each state unifying all correctional functions and programs for adults and juveniles within its executive branch

Criminal Sentencing as Practical Wisdom Graeme Brown,2017-06-01 How do judges sentence In particular how important is judicial discretion in sentencing Sentencing guidelines are often said to promote consistency but is consistency in sentencing achievable or even desirable Whilst the passing of a sentence is arguably the most public stage of the criminal justice process there have been few attempts to examine judicial perceptions of and attitudes towards the sentencing process Through interviews with Scottish judges and by presenting a comprehensive review and analysis of recent scholarship on sentencing including a comparative study of UK Irish and Commonwealth sentencing jurisprudence this book explores these issues to present a systematic theory of sentencing Through an integration of the concept of equity as particularised justice the Aristotelian concept of phronesis or practical wisdom the concept of value pluralism and the focus of appellate courts throughout the Commonwealth on sentencing by way of instinctive synthesis it is argued that judicial sentencing methodology is best viewed in terms of a phronetic synthesis of the relevant facts and circumstances of the particular case The author concludes that sentencing is best conceptualised as a form of case orientated concrete and intuitive decision making one that seeks individualisation through judicial recognition of the profoundly contextualised nature of the process

The Right to Be Punished Gabriel Hallevy,2012-10-12 Does an offender have the right to be punished The right to be punished may sound like an oxymoron but it is not necessarily so With the emergence of modern criminal law the offender gained the right to be punished by rational criminal law rather than being lynched by an angry mob The present day offender may have the right to be punished by doctrinal sentencing rather than being subjected to verdicts based on vague unclear and uncertain principles In modern criminal law the imposition of criminal liability follows accurate and strict rules whereas there are no similar rules for the imposition of punishment The process of sentencing is vague and obscure as are the considerations used for the imposition of punishments The objective of the present book is to propose a comprehensive general and legally sophisticated theory of modern doctrinal sentencing The challenges of such a legal theory are plenty and complex In addition to increasing clarity and certainty modern doctrinal sentencing must deal with modern types of delinquency e g organized crime recidivism corporate offenders high tech offenses etc and modern principles of criminal law Modern doctrinal sentencing must serve to ensure optimal sentencing
