Catalytic Reductive Carbonylation of Organic Nitro Compounds S. Cenini, F. Ragaini, 2013-04-17 About eight years ago the catalytic carbonylation of organic nitro compounds was a research field developed enough to justify a rather long review on this subject Now we feel that the scientific results and new achievements in this field very important even from an industrial point of view require a book in order to be adequately presented The competition between the catalytic carbonylation of organic nitro compounds and other chemical routes for the synthesis of a variety of organic compounds has not yet come to an end but many progresses have been done in the former field We also like to emphasize that this type of research does not only involve relevant industrial problems to be solved but it opens a research field where the academic interests mechanism of the reactions isolation of the intermediates in the catalytic cycles synthesis of model compounds and so on can find a lot of opportunities
