

The background of the entire image is a collage of historical documents and currency. On the left, there is a vertical strip of a document with the word 'BRIDGE' at the top and 'THE' at the bottom. Below it, a document from 'The Company of Augusta (Georgia)' is visible, with the text 'Paper on demand' and 'August 1st 1793'. In the center, there is a document with the word 'CAROLINA' and 'FIVE' (likely a five-dollar bill). On the right, there is a document with the word 'BANK' and 'BANK' (likely a bank note). The collage also includes various other documents, including one with the word 'FIVE' and another with the word 'BANK'.

Planting A Capitalist South Masters Merchants And Manufacturers In The Southern Interior 1790 186:

Planting a Capitalist South Tom Downey, 2009-08-01 This is a pathbreaking book well grounded in the appropriate documentary record Downey makes especially good use of the reports of the South Carolina Canal and Rail Road Company and of other corporations which are so tedious to read to offer an exciting and fresh perspective on an old problem of vital importance the relationship between businessmen and planters in the Old South American Historical Review Downey's book has many merits First of all it successfully presents a comprehensive and harmonious picture of the development of the region Second it helps to better define the contours of the long misunderstood southern political economy and its transformations during the latter part of the antebellum era It is indeed a well written and well thought piece of historiography showing in microcosm how a new synthesis of antebellum southern history should be conceived Enterprise and Society In Planting a Capitalist South Tom Downey effectively challenges the idea that commercial and industrial interests did little to alter the planter dominated political economy of the Old South By analyzing the interplay of planters merchants and manufacturers Downey characterizes the South as a sphere of contending types of capitalists agrarians with land and slaves versus commercial and industrial owners of banks railroads stores and factories His book focuses on the central Savannah River Valley of western South Carolina an influential political and economic region and the home of some of the South's leading states rights and proslavery ideologues which also spawned a number of inland commercial towns one of the nation's first railroads and a robust wage labor community As such western South Carolina provides a unique opportunity for looking at contrasting economic forces but solely within the boundaries of the South slavery vs free labor industrial vs agricultural urban vs rural A revisionary study Planting a Capitalist South offers clear evidence of a burgeoning transition to capitalist society in the Old South Downey's book is a welcome new addition to the growing corpus of studies seeking to understand the lives of white merchants and manufacturers Well written and researched Downey's excellent work will add greater nuance to our picture of the social and economic life of the Old South particularly our picture of the emerging southern middle class Georgia Historical Quarterly Planting a Capitalist South makes several important contributions The idea that commerce and industry challenged tenets of republican ideology may be a familiar one but Downey pursues it in directions seldom explored by previous historians of the Old South examining conflicts over issue like railroad routes water rights and the power of town governments Moreover he links those subjects to historians debates about the capitalist character of the region and he stakes out an innovative position with his argument that the late antebellum South was in the midst of a transition to capitalism Business History Review The Early Republic and Antebellum America Christopher G. Bates, 2015-04-08 First Published in 2015 Routledge is an imprint of Taylor Francis an Informa company The North Carolina Historical Review, 2006 Planting a Capitalist South Tom Downey, 2006-02 Planting a Capitalist South effectively challenges the idea that commercial and industrial interests did little to alter the planter dominated political economy of the Old South By analyzing the interplay of planters merchants and manufacturers the author characterizes the South as a sphere of contending types of capitalists agrarians with land and slaves versus commercial and industrial owners of banks railroads stores and factories A revisionary study Planting a Capitalist South offers clear evidence of a burgeoning transition to capitalist society in the Old South
