Fire Fighter Fatality Investigation and Prevention Program: Findings from a National Evaluation K. Kristina Peterson, Michael B. Witt, Katherine B. Morton, Murrey G. Olmsted, Harlan E. Amandus, Steven L. Proudfoot, James T. Wassell, 2010-03-21 Firefighters are called on to rescue people and protect property under serious and hazardous conditions. Some 100 firefighters die each year on duty and another 95 000 are injured. Recommendations developed through the National Institute for Occupational Safety and Health NIOSH Fire Fighter Fatality Investigation and Prevention Program FFFIPP point to many safety practices that could improve the health and safety of the nation's firefighters. The purpose of this report is to summarize the findings of a recent evaluation of the FFFIPP. Based on a national survey of fire departments and focus groups with frontline firefighters, the evaluation focused on firefighters' awareness of FFFIPP recommendations, the extent to which recommendations are being implemented, the factors affecting implementation, and NIOSH's dissemination practices. We learned that most fire departments are aware of the FFFIPP and follow its recommendations; nevertheless, various shortfalls, especially regarding cardiovascular health, motor vehicle safety, and procedures on the fireground, persist. The greatest shortfalls exist in small and volunteer fire departments where resources limit the ability to purchase needed equipment and prepare firefighters to carry out their duties safely. We identified numerous specific improvements that NIOSH could make to promote health and safety.

An Electronic Patient Referral Application: A Case Study from Zambia Niamh Darcy, Chris Kelley, Eileen Reynolds, Gordon Cressman, Wm. Perry Killam, 2010-03-30 Electronic medical records (EMRs) benefit health systems, especially in low-income developing countries. EMR systems can give medical personnel access to patients' records and can reduce time needed for data management and record keeping. The report discusses the design, implementation, and results of an installed electronic perinatal patient referral system supporting health personnel who referred patients through a closed network Web-based system in the Lusaka health district in Zambia. It demonstrates how the patient referral module laid the groundwork for a larger EMR system.
