China's White-Collar Wave Changyun Jiang,Qun Lian Hong,Ling Qiu,2019-11-04 This book explores the move from manufacturing towards service industry jobs in China's economic development during the 12th Five Year Plan period. The service industry now makes up the highest proportion of the GDP and employs the largest number of people in China. In the next Five Year Plan period it is necessary to actively push forward the strategic transformation by placing emphasis on the service industry to press ahead with system and mechanism reforms and policy innovations and cultivate diverse sustainable and continuous forces for driving its growth. Efforts are made to upgrade the service industry to better achieve economic and social development in an innovative coordinated green open and shared way. This book will be of interest to scholars researching China's future.

Services and Metropolitan Development Peter W. Daniels, 2002-11 Explores the processes guiding both the development and the spatial impacts of services on the urban system and individual areas and describes the internationalisation of services and the effects of re structuring on urban systems. Canada and the Global Economy John N. H. Britton, 1996

A collection of essays by twenty three of Canada's leading economic geographers. Canada and the Global Economy is a comprehensive study of the evolving economic and geographic patterns of Canadian development. It provides a benchmark for research on the spatial development of the Canadian economy. The contributors explore four central themes: the locational impacts of the openness of the Canadian economy; Canada's relatively simple economic geography in terms of regional variations in resources and urban development; the problems of keeping pace with rapid advances in technology and the role of government in maintaining a national market and assisting economic development. They outline the essential elements of Canada's contemporary economic geography and highlight the origins and spatial imprint of change in the Canadian economy. In particular they provide an assessment of Canada's participation in significant international patterns of economic change. Canada and the Global Economy is concerned not only with the economic size and location of consumption and production but also with institutional changes and shifts in employment, the sectoral composition of economic activity and the organizational structure and locational behaviour of particular industries and firms. Special attention is given to the technological development of both established industries and new service and manufacturing activities. A timely addition to the field, it provides a geographic perspective on significant changes in jobs and types of work that result from the transformation of economic activities.

Coalitions and Competition (Routledge Revivals) Yair Aharoni, 2014-06-17 This title first published in 1993 was one of the first books to analyse the forces behind the increasing globalization of professional business services. Based on contributions from leading authorities in international business, both academics and members of organizations such as GATT and UNCTAD, it looks at the opportunities for growth, environmental and regulatory problems and the major problems of managing the international expansion of professional firms. Crucially, it discusses such issues from the point of view of managers of such organizations and the role of governments in negotiating multinational agreements. This highly international and timely reissue will be of interest to students of international business as well as managers of professional business firms and policy makers involved in international trade issues. Modeling Services Liberalization

Thomas F. Rutherford, David G. Tarr, Jesper Jensen, Edward J. Balistreri, David G. Tarr, This paper employs a 52 sector small open economy computable general equilibrium model of the Tanzanian economy to assess the impact of the liberalization of regulatory barriers against foreign and domestic business service providers in Tanzania The model incorporates productivity effects in both goods and services markets endogenously through a Dixit Stiglitz framework It summarizes policy notes on the key business service sectors that were prepared for this work and estimates the ad valorem equivalent of barriers to foreign direct investment based on these policy notes and detailed questionnaires completed by specialists in Tanzania The authors estimate that Tanzania will gain about 5.3 percent of the value of Tanzanian consumption in the medium run or about 4.8 percent of gross domestic product from a full reform package that also includes uniform tariffs The estimated gains increase to about 16 percent of consumption in the long run steady state model where the impact on the accumulation of capital from an improvement in the productivity of capital is taken into account Decomposition exercises reveal that the largest gains to Tanzania will derive from liberalization of costly regulatory barriers that are non discriminatory in their impacts between Tanzanian and multinational service providers World Bank web site Cities and the Cultural Economy
