Ferydoun Barjesteh van Waalwijk van Doorn,1999 Liminalities of Gender and Sexuality in Nineteenth-Century Iranian Photography Staci Gem Scheiwiller,2016-12-01 Nineteenth century Iran was an ocularcentered society predicated on visuality and what was seen and unseen and photographs became liminal sites of desire that maneuvered betwixt and between various social spaces public private seen unseen accessible and forbidden thus mapping graphing and even transgressing those spaces especially in light of increasing modernization and global contact during the nineteenth and early twentieth centuries Of primary interest is how photographs negotiated and coded gender sexuality and desire becoming strategies of empowerment of domination of expression and of being seen Hence the photograph became a vehicle to traverse multiple locations that various gendered physical bodies could not and it was also the social and political relations that had preceded the photograph that determined those ideological spaces of im mobility In identifying these notions in photographs one may glean information about how modern Iran metamorphosed throughout its own long dur e or resisted those societal transformations as a result of modernization European Women in Persian Houses Parviz Tanavoli,2016-01-29 During the course of the 19th century a relatively modern medium entered the private space of Iranian houses of the wealthy and became a popular feature of interior design in Persia. This was print media lithographed images on paper and postcards and their subject was European women. These idealised images adorned houses across the country throughout the Qajar period and this trend was particularly fashionable in Isfahan and mural decorations at the entrance gate of the Qaysarieh bazaar. The interest in images of Western women was an unusual by-product of Iran's early political and cultural encounters with the West. In a world where women were rarely seen in public and even then were heavily veiled, the notion of European women dressed in by Iranian standards elegant and revealing clothing must have sparked much curiosity and some titillation among well-to-do merchants and aristocrats who felt the need to create some association however remote with these alien creatures. The introduction of such images began during the Safavid era in the 17th century with frescoes in royal palaces. This spread to other manifestations in the form of tile work and porcelain in the Qajar era which became a testament to the popularity of this visual phenomenon among Iran's urban elite in the 19th and early 20th century. Parviz Tanavoli, the prominent Iranian artist and sculptor, here brings together the definitive collection of these unique images. European Women in Persian Houses will be essential for collectors and enthusiasts interested in Iranian art, culture and social history.
