Our Changing Planet The FY 1999 US Global Change Research Program:

Our Changing Planet, 2000      Our Changing Planet Climate Change Science Program (U.S.), U.S. Global Change Research Program, 2004      Accomplishments of the U.S. Global Change Research Program National Academies of Sciences, Engineering, and Medicine, Division of Behavioral and Social Sciences and Education, Division on Earth and Life Studies, Board on Environmental Change and Society, Board on Atmospheric Sciences and Climate, Committee to Advise the U.S. Global Change Research Program, 2017-03-13 The U S Global Change Research Program USGCRP is an interagency program established by the Global Change Research Act GCRA of 1990 mandated by Congress to assist the Nation and the world to understand assess predict and respond to human induced and natural processes of global change Since the USGCRP began scientific understanding of global change has increased and the information needs of the nation have changed dramatically A better understanding of what is changing and why can help decision makers in the public and private sectors cope with ongoing change Accomplishments of the U S Global Change Research Program highlights the growth of global change science in the quarter century that the USGCRP has been in existence and documents some of its contributions to that growth through its primary functions of interagency planning and coordination and of synthesis of research and practice to inform decision making      Our Changing Planet Rick Piltz, 1999-04 This report a supplement to the president s fiscal year 1999 budget provides the highlights of the recent research of the U S Global Change Research Program the earth system global change global change issues highlights of recent national assessment of the consequences of climate change for the U S 7 appendices on the USGCRP budget organization management etc      1838, 1838 1838 1838      Fiscal Year 2001 Climate Change Budget Authorization Request United States. Congress. House. Committee on Science. Subcommittee on Energy and Environment, 2001      Global Change Ecosystems Research National Research Council, Oversight Group for the Ecosystems Panel, Ecosystems Panel, 2001-01-19 Research Council established the Ecosystems Panel in response to a request from the United States Global Change Research Program USGCRP The panel s charge included periodic reviews of the ecosystems aspects of the USGCRP and this is the first of those reviews It is based on information provided by the USGCRP including Our Changing Planet NSTC 1997 and earlier editions 1 ideas and conversations provided by participants in a workshop held in St Michaels Maryland in July 1998 and the deliberations of the panel In addition the panel reviewed the ecosystems chapter of the NRC report Global Environmental Change Research Pathways for the Next Decade NRC 1999a known as the Pathways report The USGCRP is an interagency program established in 1989 and codified by the Global Change Research Act of 1990 PL 101 606 The USGCRP comprises representatives of the departments of Agriculture Commerce National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration and National Institute of Standards and Technology Defense Energy Health and Human Services the National Institute of Environmental Health Sciences Interior and State as well as the Environmental Protection Agency the National Aeronautics and Space

Administration the National Science Foundation the Smithsonian Institution the Office of Science and Technology Policy the Office of Management and Budget and the intelligence community NSTC 1997 The USGCRP's research program is described in detail in Our Changing Planet NSTC 1997 1999 In brief the program focuses on four major areas of earth system science 1 Seasonal to interannual climate variability 2 Climate change over decades to centuries 3 Changes in ozone ultraviolet UV radiation and atmospheric chemistry and 4 Changes in land cover and in terrestrial and aquatic ecosystems The fourth topic is the area in which advice was requested from the ecosystems panel The Ecosystems Panel's charge has three parts to provide a forum for the discussion of questions of ecosystem science of interest to scientists in and out of the federal agencies to periodically review the ecosystem aspects of the USGCRP's research program and to help identify general areas of ecosystem science that need additional attention especially areas that cut across ecosystems and levels of ecological organization In addressing the second item of its charge for this report the panel first identified the most significant and challenging areas in ecosystem science then used that identification as a basis to make recommendations to the USGCRP Thus this report is not a detailed review of the USGCRP's program but rather an attempt to identify those areas that the panel concludes are most in need of attention by a general research program on global change As noted in this report some of those areas are already receiving attention by the USGCRP

Societal Adaptation to Climate Variability and Change Sally M. Kane, Gary W. Yohe, 2013-03-09 Changes in climate and climate variability have an effect on people's behaviour around the world and public institutions have an important part to play in influencing our ability to respond to and plan for climate risk We may be able to reduce climate risk by seeking to mitigate the threat on the one hand and by adapting to a changed climate on the other Another theme of the book is the integrated role of adaptation and mitigation in framing issues and performing analyses Adaptation costs fall most heavily on the poor and special attention needs to be paid to adaptation by the poorest populations An integrating framework is also presented to provide the context for an expansive typology of terms to apply to adaptation The 12 papers collected here use methods from a variety of disciplines and focus on different time frames for decision making from short term to the very long term Readership Technically trained readers familiar with the policy issues surrounding climate change and interested in learning the scientific underpinnings of issues related to societal adaptation
