Guided by existing theories of comedy and memory and through a comprehensive examination of comedic film and television productions from the United States Israel and Europe Jonathan Friedman proposes a model and a set of criteria to evaluate the effectiveness of comedy as a means of representation These criteria include depth of purpose relevance to the times and originality of form and content Friedman concludes that comedies can be effective if they provide relevant information about life and death in the past present or future break new ground and serve a purpose or multiple purposes capturing the dynamic of the Nazi system of oppression empowering or healing victims serving as a warning for the future or keeping those who can never grasp the real horror of genocide from losing perspective
