Encyclopedia of the City Roger W. Caves, 2005 A first class work of reference that will be both an essential resource for independent study as well as a useful aid in teaching a solid but also provocative starting point for wider exploration of the city Power Couples in Antiquity Anne Bielman Sánchez, 2019-03-26 Everyone can name a couple made up of famous rich or powerful partners who cultivate a joint media image which is stronger than either of their individual identities Since the 1980s they have been known as power couples Yet while the term is recent the concept is not More than 2 000 years ago Greeks and Romans became aware of the media potential of couples and used it as an instrument to reinforce political power Notable examples are Philip II of Macedonia and Olympias Cleopatra and Mark Antony or the Emperor Augustus and his wife

Livia Power Couples in Antiquity brings together the reflections of ten specialists on Greek and Roman power couples from the fourth century BCE to the first century CE. It is focused on the birth and the development of the ruling couple in the Hellenistic Greek kingdoms and in Rome between the end of the Republic and the beginning of the Empire. By taking some emblematic cases, this book analyses the redistribution of public and private roles within these couples, examines the sentimental bonds or the relations of domination established between partners, explores how these relationships played out in private and highlights the many common points between ancient and contemporary power couples. This book offers a fascinating insight into power dynamics in the ancient world, exploring not only the subtleties within these often complex relationships but also their relationships with their subjects through the cultivation and manipulation of their joint public image.

Pop Culture Shirley Fedorak, 2009-05-15 While usually associated with facets of commercial culture, pop culture can and must be analyzed as an important part of material, economic and political culture. The author begins by defining popular culture, outlining criticisms and examining the impact of globalization on pop culture. She then explores mass media and popular culture soap operas, Egyptian melodramas, Afro-Cuban rap music and virtual communities, artistic expression and popular culture graffiti art and body art and gatherings and popular culture fast food in Japan, equality in sport and wedding rituals.

Screening Gender Heike Paul, 2007 Global TV Denise D. Bielby, C. Lee Harrington, 2008-08-17 A reporter for the Los Angeles Times once noted that I Love Lucy is said to be on the air somewhere in the world 24 hours a day. That Lucy's madcap antics can be watched anywhere at any time is thanks to television syndication, a booming global marketplace that imports and exports TV shows. Programs from different countries are packaged, bought and sold all over the world under the watch of an industry that is extraordinarily lucrative for major studios and production companies. In Global TV, Denise D. Bielby and C. Lee Harrington seek to understand the machinery of this marketplace, its origins and history, its inner workings and its product management. In so doing, they are led to explore the cultural significance of this global trade and to ask how it is so remarkably successful despite the inherent cultural differences between shows and local audiences. How do culture-specific genres like American soap operas and Latin telenovelas so easily cross borders and adapt to new cultural surroundings? Why is The Nanny, whose gum-chewing star is from Queens, New York, a smash in Italy? Importantly, Bielby and Harrington also ask which kinds of shows fail. What is lost in translation? Considering such factors as censorship and other such state-specific policies, what are the inevitable constraints of crossing over? Highly experienced in the field, Bielby and Harrington provide a unique and richly textured look at global television through a cultural lens, one that has an undeniable and complex effect on what shows succeed and which do not on an international scale.

Localizing Knowledge in a Globalizing World Ali Mirsepassi, Amrita Basu, Frederick Weaver, 2003-01-01 The essays in this collection address the current crisis in area studies a crisis that differs from its perennial struggle with the established academic disciplines This crisis stems from the confluence of three related circumstances the end of the Cold War greater economic and cultural fluidity across political borders and contradictory intellectual trends in the academy which include on the one hand a renaissance of universalizing thinking in the social sciences and on the other hand the rise of post colonial studies and debates about modernity postmodernity and cultural hybridization Although the essays differ markedly in their focus and strategies the authors all demonstrate that local knowledge including serious study of individual cultures and proficiency in foreign languages which are vital to understanding rapidly changing global patterns and to countering universal claims by the social sciences While the authors also agree that area studies must reject their ethnocentric heritages and adopt inventive new contours they present a diversity

Worlds Apart: Modernity Through the Prism of the Local Daniel Miller, 2003-12-16 Worlds Apart is concerned with one of the new futures of anthropology namely the advances in technologies which create an imagination of new global and local forms It also analyses studies of the consumption of these forms and attempts to go beyond the assumptions that consumption either localises or fails to effect global forms and images Several of the chapters are written by anthropologists who have specialised in material culture studies and who examine the new forms especially television and mass commodities as well as some new uses of older forms such as the body The book also considers the ways in which people are increasingly not the primary creators of these images but have become secondary consumers

The Americas of Asian American Literature Rachel C. Lee, 1999-10-04 Drawing on a wide array of literary historical and theoretical sources Rachel Lee addresses current debates on the relationship among Asian American ethnic identity national belonging globalization and gender Lee argues that scholars have traditionally placed undue emphasis on ethnic based political commitments whether these are construed as national or global in their readings of Asian American texts This has constrained the intelligibility of stories that are focused less on ethnicity than on kinship family dynamics eroticism and gender roles In response Lee makes a case for a reconceptualized Asian American criticism that centrally features gender and sexuality Through a critical analysis of select literary texts novels by Carlos Bulosan Gish Jen Jessica Hagedorn and Karen Yamashita Lee probes the specific ways in which some Asian American authors have steered around ethnic themes with alternative tales circulating around gender and sexual identity Lee makes it clear that what has been missing from current debates has been an analysis of the complex ways in which gender mediates questions of both national belonging and international migration From anti miscegenation legislation in the early twentieth century to poststructuralist theories of language to Third World feminist theory to critical studies of global cultural and economic flows The Americas of Asian American Literature takes up pressing cultural and literary questions and points to a new direction in literary criticism
