Adapting Nathaniel Hawthorne to the Screen Laurence Raw, 2008 Raw explains how some filmmakers have tackled the difficulty of Hawthorne's material by treating it as being firmly situated in American life of the mid nineteenth century while others have used Hawthorne's work to comment on various aspects of twentieth century American life This latter device is particularly evident in the many versions of The Scarlet Letter including a 1950 television broadcast that aired two months after senator Joseph McCarthy's speech about card carrying members of the Communist Party and 1960s and early 70s versions supporting countercultural values

Nazi Germany were remnants of the residence's forgotten history and evidence that we never live far from the past. From that discovery unspooled the twisting, captivating tale of four of the remarkable people who had called this palace home. Their story is Europe's and The Last Palace, which chronicles the upheavals that transformed the continent over the past century. There was the optimistic Jewish financial baron Otto Petschek who built the palace after World War I as a statement of his faith in democracy, only to have that faith shattered. Rudolf Toussaint, the cultured, compromised German general who occupied the palace during World War II, ultimately putting his life at risk to save the house and Prague itself from destruction. Laurence Steinhardt, the first postwar US ambassador whose quixotic struggle to keep the palace out of Communist hands was paired with his pitched efforts to rescue the country from Soviet domination, and Shirley Temple Black, an eyewitness to the crushing of the 1968 Prague Spring by Soviet tanks who determined to return to Prague and help end totalitarianism and did just that as US ambassador in 1989. Weaving in the life of Eisenstein's own mother to demonstrate how those without power and privilege moved through history, The Last Palace tells the dramatic and surprisingly cyclical tale of the triumph of liberal democracy.

Notable American Women with Czechoslovak Roots Miloslav Rechcigl Jr., 2019-09-16 Even though there exist only a few general studies on the subject of Czechoslovak American women, this is not at all a reflection of the paucity of work done by these women, as this publication demonstrates. This monograph is a compendium of notable American women with Czechoslovak roots who distinguished themselves in a particular field or area from the time they first immigrated to America to date. Included are not only individuals born on the territory of former Czechoslovakia but also their descendants. This project has been approached strictly geographically, irrespective of the language or ethnicity. Because of the lack of bibliographical information, most of the monograph comprises biobibliographical information in which area a plethora of information exists. As the reader will discover, these women have been involved practically in every field of human endeavor in numbers that surprise. On the whole, they have been noted for their independent spirit and nonconforming role.

Race under Reconstruction in German Cinema Angelica Fenner, 2011-06-11 Race Under Reconstruction in German Cinema investigates postwar racial formations via a pivotal West German film by one of the most popular and prolific directors of the era. The release of Robert Stemmle's Toxi (1952) coincided with the enrolment in West German schools of the first five hundred Afro-German children fathered by African American occupation soldiers. The didactic plot traces the ideological conflicts that arise among members of a patrician family when they encounter an Afro-German child seeking adoption, herein broaching issues of integration at a time when the American civil rights movement was gaining momentum and encountering violent resistance. Perceptions of Blackness in Toxi demonstrate continuities with those prevailing in Wilhelmine Germany but also signal the influence of American social science discourse and tropes originating in icons of American popular culture such as Uncle Tom's Cabin Birth of a Nation and several Shirley Temple films By applying a Cultural Studies approach to individual film sequences publicity photos and press reviews Angelica Fenner relates West German discourses around race and integration to emerging economic and political anxieties class antagonism and the reinstatement of conventional gender roles The film Toxi is now available on DVD from the DEFA Film Library
