New Communications Landscape Demystifying Media Globalization:

The New Communications Landscape Anura Goonasekera, Jan Servaes, Georgette Wang, 2003-09-02 New Communications Landscape explores the theories of media globalization with emphasis on the areas of cultural and local television markets. It focuses on the industry content and strategy audience policy and future research. The New Communications Landscape, 2000. The Myth of Media Globalization Kai Hafez, 2007-03-26 The ongoing interconnection of the world through modern mass media is generally considered to be one of the major developments underpinning globalization. This important book considers anew the globalization phenomenon in the media sphere. Rather than heralding globalization or warning of its dangers as in many other books, Kai Hafez analyses the degree to which media globalization is really taking place. Do we have enough evidence to show that there is a linear and accelerated move towards transnationalization in the media? All too often the empirical data presented seems rather more anecdotal than representative. Many transborder media phenomena are overestimated and taken out of the context of locally and nationally oriented mainstream media processes all over the world. The inherent danger is that a central paradigm of the social sciences rather than bearing scholarly substance will turn out to be a myth and even a sometimes dangerously ideological tool. Based on a theoretical debate of media globalization, the work discusses most major fields of media development including foreign reporting, satellite TV, film, internet, foreign broadcasting, media and migration, media policy and media economy. As an important new contribution to timely debates, The Myth of Media Globalization will be essential and provocative reading for students and scholars alike. MediaMaking Lawrence Grossberg, 2006 Taking a unique approach to the study of mass communication and cultural studies, MediaMaking is a volume that presents the current knowledge about the relationship between media, culture and society. What sets this volume apart from competing texts is the approach taken and the distinguished scholarship. Rather than examining each major medium separately (newspapers, books, magazines, radio, television, film), the authors contend that mass communication cannot be studied apart from the other institutions in society and the other dimensions of social life: each is shaping and defining the other. They hold that media can only be understood in relation to their context: institutional, economic, social, cultural and historical. As such, this book explores the variety of ways in which the media are involved in our social lives. The authors explore the different relationships between the media and the systems of social value and social differences that organize power in contemporary society. They examine how the media are reproduced and consumed and what they produce in turn. Theoretically and analytically organized with sections on media's relation to behavior, politics, media effects, the public, globalization, organizations, meaning and ideology, this text offers students a more comprehensive understanding of the nature of media communication processes, an absolutely necessary part of understanding contemporary life. The Global Village Revisited Kathleen Dixon, 2009-08-06 Cultural studies scholarship on the television talk show, especially the audience discussion genre, was guardedly hopeful about its democratic or feminist potential In this exciting new volume Kathleen Dixon investigates the relationship between the talk genre and democracy but through a new emphasis on art broadly defined The Global Village Revisited Art Politics and Television Talk Shows explores three case studies from Belgium Bulgaria and the United States and reveals how these cases interanimate to produce a new view of the talk show as a global phenomenon and as a negotiation among the forces of late capitalism the unnamed but still palpable audience and the individual rhetors artists and technicians who make the shows Dixon treats the globalization of media and culture as a dynamic process that yields different results according to time and place While the way in which television talk shows serve democracy may be hard to define precisely The Global Village Revisited demonstrates the importance and necessity of this question in cultural studies Third Wave Feminism S. Gillis, G. Howie, R. Munford, 2007-04-17 This revised and expanded edition new in paperback provides a definitive collection on the current period in feminism known by many as the third wave Three sections genealogies and generations locales and locations politics and popular culture interrogate the wave metaphor and through questioning the generational account of feminism indicate possible future trajectories for the feminist movement New to this edition are an interview with Luce Irigaray a foreword by Imelda Whelehan as well as newly commissioned chapters The Arab-Israeli Conflict in the Media Tamar Ashuri, 2010-10-30 The television industry has metamorphosised from a national and largely monopolized sector to a commercial and global enterprise This has profoundly altered the way historical truth and shared memory are constructed and conveyed Here Ashuri provides a groundbreaking study of the changes through the vantage point of an illuminating mode of television production international co productions By taking an example based on current events in the Middle East a television documentary on the Arab Israeli conflict co produced by three television networks BBC PBS MBC her study enriches contemporary media research providing an unprecedented behind the scenes look at the entire production process of a co produced television history She shows that making the documentary on the Arab Israeli struggle turned into a war a war over competing memories interpretation editing and finally narration Ashuri's analysis of transnational documentary collaborations reveals inherent tensions between economic constraints and cultural forces between the local and global and between shared and cosmopolitan memory Enriching political economy studies of media by exploring the cultural negotiations at the heart of television production process and highlighting the economic processes that underlie the contested constructions of national histories The Arab Israeli Conflict in the Media will be essential reading for those interested in media and television studies as well as globalization and cultural identity Trauma and Media Allen Meek, 2011-02-09 This book provides the first comprehensive account of trauma as a critical concept in the study of modern visual media from Freud to the present day looking at how the psychoanalytic theory of trauma was adapted by the cultural critics Walter Benjamin Theodor Adorno Roland Barthes Jacques Derrida and Slavoj Zizek Doing Democracy Nancy S. Love, Mark Mattern, 2013-10-28 Doing Democracy examines the potential of the arts and popular culture to extend and deepen the experience of democracy Its contributors address the use of photography cartooning memorials monuments poetry literature music theater festivals and parades to open political spaces awaken critical consciousness engage marginalized groups in political activism and create new more democratic societies This volume demonstrates how ordinary people use the creative and visionary capacity of the arts and popular culture to shape alternative futures It is unique in its insistence that democratic theorists and activists should acknowledge and employ affective as well as rational faculties in the ongoing struggle for democracy

Aesthetic Practices and Politics in Media, Music, and Art Rocío G. Davis, Dorothea Fischer-Hornung, Johanna C. Kardux, 2010-09-13 This volume analyzes innovative forms of media and music art installations television commercials photography films songs telenovelas to examine the performance of migration in contemporary culture Though migration studies and media studies are ostensibly different fields this transnational collection of essays addresses how their interconnection has shaped our understanding of the paradigms through which we think about migration ethnicity nation and the transnational Cultural representations intervene in collective beliefs Art and media clearly influence the ways the experience of migration is articulated and recalled intervening in individual perceptions as well as public policy To understand the connection between migration and diverse media the authors examine how migration is represented in film television music and art but also how media shape the ways in which host country and homeland are imagined Among the topics considered are new mediated forms for representing migration widening the perspective on the ways these representations may be analyzed readings of enactments of memory in trans and inter disciplinary ways and discussions of globalization and transnationalism inviting us to rethink traditional borders in respect to migration nation states as well as disciplines
