New Shop Floor Management:

New Shop Floor Management Kiyoshi Suzaki, 1993-02-28 In this first comprehensive departure from the time and motion dictums of Frederick Taylor's Shop Management that have influenced management practices for most of this century Kiyoshi Suzaki offers a framework for successfully conducting business at its most crucial point the shop floor Drawing on the principles of holistic management where organizational boundaries are smashed and co destiny is created Suzaki demonstrates how modern shop floor management techniques focusing maximum energy on the front line can lead to dramatic improvements in productivity and value added to services The role of management today Suzaki argues is to eliminate its own responsibilities by thinking of the organization from the genba or shop floor point of view In this challenge Suzaki claims organizations need to collect the wisdom of people by practicing Glass Wall Management where organizations become transparent enabling employees to contribute maximum creativity as opposed to blocking their potential with what he calls Brick Wall Management Further to empower individuals to selfmanage their work and satisfy their customers Suzaki asserts that they all should learn to manage their own mini company where everybody is considered president of his or her area of responsibility Front line supervisors Suzaki shows must develop a mission and goals and share them both up and downstream He cites examples of the shop floor point of view McDonald's Corporation's legal staff learning how to sell hamburgers and fix milkshake machines Honda's human resource staff training on the assembly line that narrow the gap between top management and the shop floor By upgrading people's skills focusing on empowerment and streamlining processes Suzaki illustrates that an organization will realize concrete improvements in quality cost delivery safety morale and ultimately its competitive position

Shop Floor Control Systems A. Bauer,J. Browne,R. Bowden,J. Duggan,2012-12-06 In recent years there has been a tremendous upsurge of interest in manufacturing systems design and analysis Large industrial companies have realized that their manufacturing facilities can be a source of tremendous opportunity if managed well or a huge corporate liability if managed poorly In particular industrial managers have realized the potential of well designed and installed production planning and control systems Manufacturing in an environment of short product life cycles and increasing product diversity looks to techniques such as manufacturing resource planning Just In Time JIT and total quality control among others to meet the challenge Customers are demanding high quality products and very fast turn around on orders Manufacturing personnel are aware of the lead time from receipt of order to delivery of completed orders at the customer s premises It is clear that this production lead time is for the majority of manufacturing firms greatly in excess of the actual processing or manufacturing time There are many reasons for this among them poor coordination between the sales and manufacturing function Some are within the control of the manufacturing function Others are not

Reorganizing work processes into cells has helped many organizations streamline operations shorten lead times increase quality and lower costs Cellular manufacturing is a powerful concept that is simple to understand however its ultimate success depends on deciding where cells fit into your organization and then applying the know how to design implement and operate them Reorganizing the Factory presents a thoroughly researched and comprehensive life cycle approach to competing through cellular work organizations It takes you from the basic cell concept and its benefits through the process of justifying designing implementing operating and improving this new type of work organization in offices and on the factory floor The book discusses many important technical dimensions such as factory analysis cell design planning and control systems and principles for lead time and inventory reduction However unique to the literature it also covers in depth the numerous managerial issues that accompany organizing work into cells In most implementations performance measurement compensation education and training employee involvement and change management are critically important These issues are often overlooked in the planning process yet they can occupy more of the implementation time than do the technical aspects of cells Includes Why do cells improve lead time quality and cost Planning for cell implementation Justifying the move to cells strategically and economically Designing efficient manufacturing and office cells Selecting and training cell employees Compensation system for cell employees Performance and cost measurement Planning and control of materials and capacity Managing the change to cells Problems in designing implementing and operating cells Improving and adapting existing cells Structured frameworks and checklists to help analysis and decision making Numerous examples of cells in various industries
