to the world's second largest economy. The country's phenomenal economic growth has been sustained primarily by its rapid and continuous industrialization. Currently, industry accounts for nearly two fifths of China's gross domestic product and since 2009 China has been the world's largest exporter of manufactured products. This book explores the question of how far this industrial growth has been the product of government policies. It discusses how government policies and their priorities have developed and evolved, examines how industrial policies are linked to policies in other areas such as trade, technology and regional development, and assesses how new policy initiatives are encouraging China's increasing success in new technology intensive industries. It also demonstrates how China's industrial policies are linked to development of industrial clusters and regions.

The Making and Remaking of China's "Red Classics" Rosemary Roberts, Li Li, 2017-10-19. The Making and Remaking of China's Red Classics is the first full length work to bring together research on the red classics across the entire Maoist period through to the reform era. It covers a representative range of genres including novels, short stories, films, TV series, picture books, animation and traditional style paintings. Collectively, the chapters offer a panoramic view of the production and reception of the original red classics and the adaptations and remakes of such works after the Cultural Revolution. The contributors present fascinating stories of how a work came to be regarded as or failed to become a red classic. There has never been a single answer to the question of what counts as a red classic; artists had to negotiate the changing political circumstances and adopt the correct artistic technique to bring out the authentic image of the people while appealing to the taste of the mass audience at the same time. A critical examination of these works reveals their sociopolitical and ideological import, aesthetic significance and function as a mass cultural phenomenon at particular historical moments. This volume marks a step forward in the growing field of the study of Maoist cultural products. The Making and Remaking of China's Red Classics analyzes the creation of literature in the Maoist era as well as the way in which the revolutionary canon was rediscovered and imagined during the reform period. This book is a timely and fascinating set of studies critically illuminating a foundational time during PRC history and its aftermath. Wendy Larson, professor emerita, University of Oregon. Creative works produced in the Mao era, 1942-1976, are often dismissed as mere propaganda. Despite the fact that they are artistic reflections of that remarkable period, scholars have generally ignored these red classics. This book throws much needed light on them. It is a must read for anyone wanting to understand the cultural scene in China. Kam Louie, honorary professor, University of Hong Kong and UNSW Australia.

Books of Fate and Popular Culture in Early China Marc Kalinowski, Donald Harper, 2017-11-06. Books of Fate and Popular Culture in Early China is a comprehensive introduction to the manuscripts known as daybooks, examples of which have been found in Warring States, Qin and Han tombs, 453 BCE-220 CE. Their main content concerns hemerology or knowledge of good and bad days. Daybooks reveal the place of hemerology in daily life and are invaluable sources for the study of popular culture. Eleven scholars have contributed chapters examining the daybooks from different perspectives, detailing their significance as manuscript objects intended for everyday use and showing their connection to almanacs still popular in Chinese communities today as well as to hemerological literature in medieval Europe and ancient Babylon Contributors include Marianne Bujard L szl S ndor Chardonnens Christopher Cullen Donald Harper Marc Kalinowski Li Ling Liu Lexian Alasdair Livingstone Richard Smith Alain Thote and Yan Changgui

Artistic and Intellectual Practices in Contemporary China Carol Yinghua Lu, 2025-01-20 This edited volume is the first internationally available English translation of key lectures and essays delivered at Beijing's Inside Out Art Museum over the past decade The book elevates a chorus of voices from domestic and international intellectuals artists curators and historians in a dialogue that reframes Chinese art from 1949 to the present Part I offers critical academic complications of the story of Chinese art from the 1950s to the present as one singularly defined and stifled by political revolution It traces important continuities and early examples of contemporary art practice to the Party's birth and consolidation of power from the 1920s onwards It relates the formation of contemporary art to the historical course of intellectual practice in China from 1949 Part II proposes China as an issue requiring historical interrogation rather than an inviolable entity It questions the efficacy of Asia as a term presents case studies of independent publishers that challenged tightly crafted historical narratives and wraps up with incisive reflections on the challenges confronting creatives and historians in China today With chapters ranging from peer reviewed scholarship to cuttingly humorous personal anecdotes its contributing authors give rare first hand accounts of navigating pertinent historical and current situations including censorship China's ill liberalism and COVID 19 This book offers readers an ear to heretofore closed door conversations in leading modern and contemporary art spaces

A Protestant Church in Communist China John Craig William Keating, 2012-02-16 Freedom of religious belief is guaranteed under the constitution of the People's Republic of China but the degree to which this freedom is able to be exercised remains a highly controversial issue Much scholarly attention has been given to persecuted underground groups such as Falun but one area that remains largely unexplored is the relationship between officially registered churches and the communist government This study investigates the history of one such official church Moore Memorial Church in Shanghai This church was founded by American Methodist missionaries By the time of the 1949 revolution it was the largest Protestant church in East Asia running seven day a week programs As a case study of one individual church operating from an historical rather than theological perspective this study examines the experience of people at this church against the backdrop of the turbulent politics of the Mao and Deng eras It asks and seeks to answer questions such as were the people at the church pleased to see the foreign missionaries leave Were people forced to sign the so called Christian manifesto Once the church doors were closed in 1966 did worshipers go underground Why was this particular church especially chosen to be the first reopened in Shanghai in 1979 What explanations are there for its phenomenal growth since then A considerable proportion of the data for this study is drawn from Chinese language sources including interviews personal correspondence statistics internal church documents and archives many of which have never previously been published or accessed by foreign researchers The main focus of this study is on the period from 1949 to 1989 a period in which the church experienced many ups and downs restrictions and limitations The Mao era in particular remains one of the least understood and seldom written about periods in the history of Christianity in China This study therefore makes a significant contribution to our evolving understanding of the delicate balancing act between compromise co operation and compliance that categorizes church state relations in modern China

Folk Art and Modern Culture in Republican China Felicity Lufkin,2016-01-21 Folk art is now widely recognized as an integral part of the modern Chinese cultural heritage but in the early twentieth century awareness of folk art as a distinct category in the visual arts was new. Internationally, intellectuals in different countries used folk arts to affirm national identity and cultural continuity in the midst of the changes of the modern era. In China, artists, critics, and educators likewise saw folk art as a potentially valuable resource; perhaps it could be a fresh source of cultural inspiration and energy representing the authentic voice of the people in contrast to what could be seen as the limited and elitist classical tradition. At the same time, many Chinese intellectuals also saw folk art as a problem they believed that folk art as it was promoted represented superstitious and backward ideas that were incompatible with modernization and progress. In either case, folk art was too important to be left in the hands of the folk; educated artists and researchers felt a responsibility to intervene to reform folk art and create new popular art forms that would better serve the needs of the modern nation. In the early 1930s, folk art began to figure in the debates on the social role of art, and artists that were waged in the pages of the Chinese press. The first major exhibition of folk art was held in Hangzhou, and the new print movement claimed the print as a popular artistic medium while for the most part declaring its distance from contemporary folk printmaking practices. During the war against Japan from 1937 to 1945, educated artists deployed imagery and styles drawn from folk art in morale-boosting propaganda images but worried that this work fell short of true artistic accomplishment and pandering to outmoded tastes. The questions raised in interaction with folk art during this pivotal period—questions about heritage, about the social position of art, and the exercise of cultural authority—continue to resonate into the present day.

Library of Congress Subject Headings Library of Congress, Library of Congress. Office for Subject Cataloging Policy, 2001. China's Peasant Agriculture and Rural Society Jan Douwe van der Ploeg, Jingzhong Ye, 2016-05-20. China's agriculture and rural society has undergone rapid changes in recent years. Many poorer farmers and younger people have moved to cities, and yet China has an immense challenge to feed a growing and more affluent population. This book provides a bottom-up view of China's agriculture, showing how the many millions of Chinese peasants make a living. It presents a vivid description of the mechanisms used by rural households to defend and sustain their livelihoods, increase their agricultural production, and improve the quality of their lives. The authors examine the newly emerging trajectories of entrepreneurial and capitalist farming and assess whether such alternatives will be able to meet the enormous social, economic, and environmental challenges that China faces. The book also explores the paradigm that has underpinned the organization and development of China's agriculture from ancient times to the present day. This shows the importance of balancing in the Chinese model as compared to the one-sided imposition of continual modernization in the western model. It is argued that such balancing is at the core of the current Sannong policy, referring to the three ruralities of food sovereignty, wellbeing for peasant households, and an attractive countryside.
