

NEW 'IRON CURTAIN' FALLS ACROSS EU OVER MIGRANT CRISIS

An east-west axis has emerged between the EU member states who want to follow a more moderate path versus those who pursue stricter anti-immigrant policies

The Visegrad Group, with its refusal to take in immigrants under an EU-wide resettlement quota scheme, offers Italy an attractive alliance option

- COUNTRIES WITH ANTI-IMMIGRATION POLICIES
- COUNTRIES WITH MODERATE IMMIGRATION POLICIES

The disagreements and nascent alliances that have recently arisen among EU member states are mainly due to the fact that for several years the EU has been unable to find a solution to immigration policy

The New Bilateralism
Julie Smith, Mariana Tsatsas, 2002 This volume assesses the changing nature of the UK's bilateral relations within the EU The authors argue that effective bilateral relations are vital to effective decisionmaking and that with repeated EU enlargement they are becoming increasingly important While France and Germany working in tandem have for many years acted as a motor of integration few other countries have actively sought to build up good bilateral relations on a systematic basis Since the 1998 step change initiative the UK has been trying to do just this The book shows that the UK has begun to build up long term bilateral cooperation that will serve as the backdrop to specific bilateral initiatives particularly in the areas of defense social policy and internal security enabling it to push the process of integration further

Globalization and Regime Change
Robin Alison Remington, Robert K. Evanson, 2019-10-25 This timely book examines post communist developments in Russia central Europe and the Balkans emphasizing foreign and security policies and their domestic linkages Framed around the concepts of globalization and regime change the rich set of case studies traces the repercussions for politicians and institutions forced to adjust to the disappearance of the East from the cold war's East West polarity The contributors explore how each country has grappled with such questions as how to change from one party to many how to create viable market economies and how to restructure security alliances They conclude by considering the prospects for further regime change from democracies to hybrid systems and the implications for the future of the European Union

Beyond the Borders
Katarzyna Kosior, Agata Jurkowska, 2007 Popular Geopolitics and Nation Branding in the Post-Soviet Realm Robert A. Saunders, 2016-07-07 This seminal book explores the complex relationship between popular geopolitics and nation branding among the Newly Independent States of Eurasia and their combined role in shaping contemporary national image and statecraft within and beyond the region It provides critical perspectives on international relations nationalism and national identity through the use of innovative approaches focusing on popular culture new media public diplomacy and alternative narrators of the nation By positing popular geopolitics and nation branding as contentious forces and complementary flows the study explores the tensions and elisions between national self image and external perceptions of the nation and how this complex interplay has become integral to contemporary global affairs

Determinants of FDI in Central and Eastern Europe
Hanna Makhavikova, 2018-08-17 This book provides a detailed examination of foreign direct investment FDI inflows in Central and Eastern Europe CEE after closer integration in the European Union An important facet of European economic integration was the development of a free trade area in Central and Eastern Europe which improved market accessibility. However, to date, these relations have been little explored theoretically. The book examines foreign investments in different transition countries from both a theoretical and an empirical perspective. It analyzes changes in the choice of location by foreign investors in nineteen CEE countries between 1992 and 2015 and shows that it is linked to the removal of intra-regional trade barriers. The findings suggest that regional integration increases the incentives for multinationals to invest in the participating countries, especially in those with larger markets and lower production costs.
