Unmaking Waste Sarah Newman,2023-05-26 Explores the concept of waste from fresh historical cultural and geographical perspectives Garbage is often assumed to be an inevitable part and problem of human existence But when did people actually come to think of things as trash as becoming worthless over time or through use as having an end Unmaking Waste tackles these questions through a long term cross cultural approach Drawing on archaeological finds historical documents and ethnographic observations to examine Europe the United States and Central America from prehistory to the present Sarah Newman traces how different ideas about waste took shape in different times and places Newman examines what people consider to be waste and how they interact with it as well as what happens when different perceptions of trash come into conflict Conceptions of waste have shaped forms of reuse and renewal in ancient Mesoamerica early modern ideas of civility and forced religious conversion in New Spain and even the modern discipline of archaeology Newman argues that centuries of assumptions imposed on other places times and peoples need to be rethought This book is not only a broad reconsideration of waste it is also a call for new forms of archaeology that do not take garbage for granted Unmaking Waste reveals that waste is not and never has been an obvious or universal concept

The Creation of Monuments Alistair Oswald,Carolyn Dyer,Martyn Barber,2014-07-15 Neolithic Causewayed enclosures are amongst the oldest rarest and most enigmatic of the ancient monuments found in Europe First recognised as a distinct type in the 1920s sixty nine certain or probable examples have now been identified in the British Isles As a class they are of outstanding importance for while their precise functions remain unclear they represent the first non funerary monuments and the earliest instance of the enclosure of open space This book presents an overview of the findings of a systematic national programme of research carried out by the RCHME now merged with English Heritage Every certain probable and suggested causewayed enclosure in England has been investigated through integrated aerial and field survey Specialist reconnaissance flying has been undertaken along with the thorough analysis of aerial photographs taken from the 1920s onwards This has greatly increased the number of sites known turning the spotlight onto many that have received little or no archaeological attention in the past The aerial surveys now available offer a new basis for improved understanding Analytical field investigations of the few causewayed enclosures that are well preserved as earthworks have also squeezed fresh information out of even those long familiar to archaeologists Far from merely dotting the i s and crossing the t s of past fieldworkers these detailed surveys have led to the rejection of some long held theories and the proposal of new interpretations This book significantly advances the understanding of causewayed enclosures both as individual monuments and as a class It is a major contribution to the understanding of the British Neolithic and to landscape archaeology more generally
