Production and Use of Urban Knowledge Hans Thor Andersen, Robert Thomas Atkinson, 2013-06-13 This book provides new insights on cities and the nature of urban development and the role of knowledge management in urban growth It considers how knowledge informs policies and supports decision making and can assist in addressing the drivers of urban change The way that knowledge is produced and used in urban development is analysed with examples drawn from a range of European countries This book illustrates how the development and implementation of policies for urban areas can draw on knowledge management even as the knowledge economy itself stimulates the evolution of the city as a place of innovation and creativity Whilst knowledge grows in importance so do urban issues particularly in economic and political contexts at both European and national levels These essays explore growth in the range of knowledge available in urban contexts the ways to generate new knowledge from a wide range of stakeholders and how these can make an effective contribution to decision making processes in urban development The attractiveness of cities and surrounding areas to knowledge based forms of industry and investment and the competitiveness and performance of cities are a matter of major concern for national governments In a sense it has become too important to leave to city politicians and it is a topic requiring sustained reflection This book gives the reader a detailed understanding of the issues involved and prompts further reflections The Routledge Companion to Urban Regeneration Michael E. Leary, John McCarthy, 2013-10-30 In the past decade urban regeneration policy makers and practitioners have faced a number of difficult challenges such as sustainability budgetary constraints demands for community involvement and rapid urbanization in the Global South Urban regeneration remains a high profile and important field of government led intervention and policy and practice continue to adapt to the fresh challenges and opportunities of the 21st century as well as confronting long standing intractable urban problems and dilemmas This Companion provides cutting edge critical review and synthesis of recent conceptual policy and practical developments within the field With contributions from 70 international experts within the field it explores the meaning of urban regeneration in differing national contexts asking questions and providing informed discussion and analyses to illuminate how an apparently disparate field of research policy and practice can be rendered coherent drawing out common themes and significant differences The Companion is divided into six sections exploring globalization and neo liberal perspectives on urban regeneration emerging reconceptualizations of regeneration public infrastructure and public space housing and cosmopolitan communities community centred regeneration and culture led regeneration The concluding chapter considers the future of urban regeneration and proposes a nine point research agenda This Companion assembles a diversity of approaches and insights in one comprehensive volume to provide a state of the art review of the field It is a valuable resource for both advanced undergraduate and postgraduate students in Urban Planning Built Environment Urban Studies and Urban Regeneration as well as academics practitioners and politicians Governing Compact Cities Philipp Rode, 2018-01-26 Governing Compact Cities investigates how governments and other critical actors organise to enable compact urban growth combining higher urban densities mixed use and urban design quality with more walkable and public transport oriented urban development

Philipp Rode draws on empirical evidence from London and Berlin to examine how urban policymakers professionals and stakeholders have worked across disciplinary silos geographic scales and different time horizons since the early 1990s

New Labour and Planning Phil Allmendinger, 2011-01-17 Allmendinger presents a thorough analysis of the planning system throughout the years of the Labour government and what this means for the future of UK planning policy Whose Urban Renaissance? Libby Porter, Kate Shaw, 2009-01-13 The desire of governments for a renaissance of their cities is a defining feature of contemporary urban policy From Melbourne and Toronto to Johannesburg and Istanbul government policies are successfully attracting investment and middle class populations to their inner areas Regeneration or gentrification as it can often become produces winners and losers There is a substantial literature on the causes and unequal effects of gentrification and on the global and local conditions driving processes of dis and re investment But there is little examination of the actual strategies used to achieve urban regeneration what were their intents did they succeed and if not why not and what were the specific consequences Whose Urban Renaissance asks who benefits from these urban transformations The book contains beautifully written and accessible stories from researchers and activists in 21 cities across Europe North and South America Asia South Africa the Middle East and Australia each exploring a specific case of urban regeneration Some chapters focus on government or market strategies driving the regeneration process and look closely at the effects Others look at the local contingencies that influence the way these strategies work Still others look at instances of opposition and struggle and at policy interventions that were used in some places to ameliorate the inequities of gentrification Working from these stories the editors develop a comparative analysis of regeneration strategies with nuanced assessments of local constraints and counteracting policy responses The concluding chapters provide a critical comparison of existing strategies and open new directions for more equitable policy approaches in the future Whose Urban Renaissance is targeted at students academics planners policy makers and activists The book is unique in its geographical breadth and its constructive policy emphasis offering a succinct critical and timely exploration of urban regeneration strategies throughout the world
