News From Nowhere Television And The News:

News from Nowhere Edward Jay Epstein, 2000-02-22 A detailed probing analysis of the economic political and journalistic structure of network news organizations

News from Nowhere Edward Jay Epstein, 2000-02-22 In an age when the American public relies more on television for its news than any other medium Edward Jay Epstein's detailed probing analysis of the decision making process in network news organizations has achieved the status of a classic Mr Epstein shows how internal corporate policy and budget requirements shape the direction of television news coverage What we see on the network evening news he demonstrates does not mirror reality because TV's essential aim is not to inform but to excite viewers enough to induce them to stay tuned The best book ever written about any aspect of television Richard Schickel The book is burnished with insights on virtually every page Epstein's analysis seems to me incontestable and is offered with great cogency elegance and sophistication Stephen J Whitfield Brandeis University A complex fascinating book Mr Epstein shows that no educated citizen should rely exclusively or principally on TV news but also that none should fail to watch it Wall Street Journal

Estimating Equilibrium Exchange Rates John Williamson, 1994 The problems of exchange rate misalignments and the resulting payments imbalances have plagued the world economy for decades At the Louvre Accord of 1987 the Group of Five industrial countries adopted a system of reference ranges for exchange rate management influenced by proposals of C Fred Bergstan and John Williamson for a target zone system The reference range approach has however been operated only intermittently and half heartedly and questions continue to be raised in policy and scholarly circles about the design and operation of a full fledged target zone regime This volume with chapters by leading international economists explores one crucial issue in the design of a target zone system the problem of calculating Williamson's concept of the fundamental equilibrium exchange rate FEER Williamson contributes an overview of the policy and analytic issues and a second chapter on his own calculations

American Television News: The Media Marketplace and the Public Interest Steve M. Barkin, 2016-09-16 This concise history of the news broadcasting industry will appeal to both students and general readers Stretching from the radio days of the 1920s and 1930s and the early era of television after World War II through to the present the book shows how commercial interests regulatory matters and financial considerations have long shaped the broadcasting business The network dominance of the 1950s ushered in the new prominence of the anchorman a distinctly American development and gave birth to the golden age of TV broadcasting which featured hard hitting news and documentaries epitomized by the reports by CBS's Edward R Murrow Financial pressures and advertising concerns in the 1960s led the networks to veer away from their commitment to serve the public interest and tabloid television celebrity gossip driven soft news and news magazines became increasingly widespread In the 1980s cable news further transformed broadcasting igniting intense competition for viewers in the media marketplace Focusing on both national and local news this stimulating volume examines the evolution of broadcast journalism It also considers how new electronic technologies will affect news delivery in the 21st century and whether television news can still both serve the public interest and maintain an audience When MBAs Rule the Newsroom Doug Underwood,1993

Underwood shows how the trend toward making newspapers more responsive to reader s desires has restricted journalism
