Duncan,Andrew D. Solovey,Gregory S. Rusk,1992-06-12 All therapists at some time or other are confronted with cases that do not fit the assumptions of their chosen theoretical model clients who should get better do not while others improve for reasons the model does not explain One lesson that can and should be drawn from such cases is that the client s perception of the therapist s behavior and of the intervention process is a powerful factor in therapeutic success or failure These relationship factors account for a significant proportion of change in psychotherapy yet little has been written about how to utilize them Filling a gap in the literature this book presents a pragmatic application of these simple but difficult experiential lessons to the practice of individual couple and family therapy When should a therapist shift gears And how is it done CHANGING THE RULES presents a flexible methodology for practice that encourages clinicians to utilize their clients interpretations in constructing more effective interventions Providing a developmental and empirical context for the approach the book covers the initial interview and the selection design and delivery of interventions as well as issues such as ethics and gender bias Several case examples and two full length studies demonstrate each stage of the therapeutic process fully illustrating the approach and enabling the creative therapist to replicate it in practice Proposing a coherent framework for practice that empowers relationship effects enhances therapist flexibility and expands the repertoire of intervention strategies for working with individuals couples and families this volume is an invaluable resource for clinicians academicians and students regardless of theoretical orientation      Creating a Culture for High-Performing Schools Cletus R. Bulach,Fred C.

Lunenburg, Les Potter, 2008-08-28 A high performing school is described as one where student achievement is high and student and teacher absenteeism is low Student behavior is such that teachers seldom have to control them or tell them what to do This results in greater time on task higher teacher morale low teacher absenteeism and improved parental support One other distinctive feature of a high performing school is that the student peer group is a positive force and not a negative force The end result is a school culture where faculty and students trust and care about each other and there is a cooperative attitude

Needs Assessment Phase III Laurie Stevahn, Jean A. King, 2010 Ultimately the value of any needs assessment lies in whether it leads to action plans for improving and enhancing the organization or group for which it was conducted In practice this may be more difficult than it would seem This book takes the reader through a journey of getting results utilized and then evaluating the needs assessment itself Pitfalls to avoid along the way are thoughtfully illuminated A major highlight of the text is the double dozen techniques that can be used to make the trip a special experience The text explains where the techniques best fit into making utilization a reality

Myron H. Dembo,Helena Seli,2004-03-05 A motivation and learning strategies textbook that bridges research and practice Motivation and Learning Strategies for College Success Second Edition teaches college students how to become more self directed learners Study skills are treated as a serious academic course Students learn about human motivation and learning as they improve their study skills The text does not offer recipes for success or lists of quick tips Rather the focus is on relevant information and features designed to help students to identify the components of academic learning that contribute to high achievement to master and practice effective learning and study strategies and then to complete self management studies whereby they are taught a process for improving their academic behavior A framework organized around six components related to academic success motivation methods of learning time management control of the physical and social environment and performance makes it easy for students to understand what they need to do to become more successful in the classroom. The text combines an overview of theory and research to help learners understand what factors determine or influence successful learning and why they are asked to use different study and learning strategies in the text with field tested exercises, follow up activities and appendices that assist students in observing and changing their own behavior. A separate Instructor's Manual provides helpful information for teaching the material, includes additional exercises and experiences for students, provides both objective and essay test questions and includes information on how students can maintain a portfolio to demonstrate their acquisition of learning and study skills and guidelines for helping students complete a self management study of their own behavior.

Helping Skills for Human Service Workers (4th Ed.) Kenneth France, Kim Weikel, 2019-09-23. This updated and expanded fourth edition continues the theme of the previous edition, emphasizing the current supporting research towards the building of relationships and encouraging productive change between human service workers and their clients. The text arranged the chapters in the following manner: Chapter 1 discusses several basic issues regarding the development and use of helping skills; Chapter 2 explores common modes of response; Chapter 3 encounters several ingredients that foster positive relationships; Chapter 4 presents a step by step approach to problem solving; Chapter 5 examines responses that can detract from efforts made; Chapter 6 presents a straightforward approach to establishing goals, objectives and plans; Chapter 7 describes channels of nonverbal information and commonly encountered nonverbal messages; Chapter 8 highlights endeavors that take center stage before, during and after scheduled appointments; Chapter 9 considers the needs of several groups such as children and older persons, clients having low socioeconomic status, individuals experiencing psychosis and longstanding issues, and other individuals. New and supporting research for the following topics are included: the helping alliance, client feedback, communication, self efficacy and stress in helping skills, students responding to negative feelings, methods for implementing plans, person centered decision making that is required by law under the Patient Protection and Affordable Care Act for certain older and disabled individuals, gender, cultural heritage and ethnicity. In addition, there are multiple choice questions as well as short answer and fill in the response items. Two complete client interviews are included which will illustrate the value of the skills demonstrated with the person being interviewed. The text is further enhanced by an appendix offering numerous tools such as exercises and forms. This informative book is designed for human resource professionals, counselors, social workers and other related helping professionals.
