Composing Media Composing Embodiment Kristin L Arola, Anne Wysocki, 2012-03-31 What any body is and is able to do cannot be disentangled from the media we use to consume and produce texts from the Introduction Kristin Arola and Anne Wysocki argue that composing in new media is composing the body is embodiment In Composing Media Composing Embodiment they have brought together a powerful set of essays that agree on the need for compositionists and their students to engage with a wide range of new media texts These chapters explore how texts of all varieties mediate and thereby contribute to the human experiences of communication of self the body and composing Sample assignments and activities exemplify how this exploration might proceed in the writing classroom Contributors here articulate ways to understand how writing enables the experience of our bodies as selves and at the same time to see the work of our writing in mediating selves to make them accessible to institutional perceptions and constraints These writers argue that what a body does and can do cannot be disentangled from the media we use nor from the times and cultures and technologies with which we engage To the discipline of composition this is an important discussion because it clarifies the impact's of literacy on citizens freedoms and societies To the classroom it is important because it helps compositionists to support their students as they enact learn and reflect upon their own embodied and embodying writing

Conceptualizing 'Everyday Resistance' Anna Johansson, Stellan Vinthagen, 2019-10-16 Everyday resistance is about the many ways people undermine power and domination through their routine and everyday actions Unlike open rebellions or demonstrations it is typically hidden not politically articulated and often ingenious But because of its disguised nature it is often poorly understood as a form of politics and its potential underestimated Conceptualizing Everyday Resistance presents an analytical framework and theoretical tools to understand the entanglements of everyday power and resistance These are applied to diverse empirical cases including queer relationships in the context of heteronormativity Palestinian daily life under military occupation workplace behaviors under office surveillance and the tactics of fat acceptance bloggers facing the war against obesity Johansson and Vinthagen argue that everyday resistance is best understood by accounting for different repertoires of tactics relations between actors and struggles around constructions of time and space Through a critical dialogue with the work of James C Scott Michel de Certeau and Asef Bayat they aim to reconstruct the field of resistance studies expanding what counts as resistance and building systematic analysis Conceptualizing Everyday Resistance offers researchers and students from different theoretical and empirical backgrounds an essential overview of the field and a creative framework that illuminates the potential of all people to transform society
