Reading Architectural History:

Reading Architectural History Dana Arnold, 2003-09-02 Architectural history is more than just the study of buildings Architecture of the past and present remains an essential emblem of a distinctive social system and set of cultural values and as a result it has been the subject of study of a variety of disciplines But what is architectural history and how should we read it Reading Architectural History examines the historiographic and socio cultural implications of the mapping of British architectural history with particular reference to eighteenth and nineteenth century Britain Discursive essays consider a range of writings from biographical and social histories to visual surveys and guidebooks to examine the narrative structures of histories of architecture and their impact on perception and understanding of the architecture of the past Alongside this each chapter cites canonical histories juxtaposed with a range of social and cultural theorists to reveal that these writings are richer than we have perhaps recognised and that architectural production in this period can be interrogated in the same way as that from more recent past and can be read in a variety of ways The essays and texts combine to form an essential course reader for methods and critical approaches to architectural history and more generally as examples of the kind of evidence used in the formation of architectural histories while also offering a thematic introduction to architecture in Britain and its social and cultural meaning

Rethinking Architectural Historiography Dana Arnold, Elvan Altan Ergut, Belgin Turan Ozkaya, 2006-09-27 Rather than subscribing to a single position this collection informs the reader about the current state of the discipline looking at changes across the broad field of methodological theoretical and geographical plurality Divided into three sections Rethinking Architectural Historiography begins by renegotiating foundational and contemporary boundaries of architectural history in relation to other fields such as art history and archaeology It then goes on to critically engage with past and present histories disclosing assumptions biases and absences in architectural historiography It concludes by exploring the possibilities provided by new perspectives reframing the discipline in the light of new parameters and problematics This timely and illustrated title reflects upon the current changes in historiographical practice exploring potential openings that may contribute further transformation of the disciplines and theories on architectural historiography and addresses the current question of the disciplinary particularity of architectural history

History Beyond the Text Sarah Barber, Corinna Peniston-Bird, 2013-02-01 Historians are increasingly looking beyond the traditional and turning to visual oral aural and virtual sources to inform their work The challenges these sources pose require new skills of interpretation and require historians to consider alternative theoretical and practical approaches In order to help historians successfully move beyond traditional text Sarah Barber and Corinna Peniston Bird bring together chapters from historical specialists in the fields of fine art photography film oral history architecture virtual sources music cartoons landscape and material culture to explain why when and how these less traditional sources can be used Each chapter introduces the reader to the source suggests the methodological and theoretical questions historians should keep in mind when using it and provides case studies to illustrate best practice in analysis and interpretation Pulling these disparate sources together the introduction discusses the nature of historical sources and those factors which are unique to and shared by the sources covered throughout the book Taking examples from around the globe this collection of essays aims to inspire practitioners of history to expand their horizons and incorporate a wide variety of primary sources in their work

Women and Architectural History Dana Arnold,2024-07-01 In this book prominent architectural historians who happen to be women reflect on their practice and the intervention this has made in the discipline Of particular concern are the ways in which feminine subjectivities have been embodied in the discourses of architectural history Each of the chapters examines the author s own position and the disruptive presence of women as both subject and object in the historiography of a specific field of enquiry The aim is not to replace male lives with female lives or to write women into the masculinist narratives of architectural history Instead this book aims to broaden the discourses of architectural history to explore how the potentially unnatural rule of women subverts canonical norms through the empowerment of otherness rather than a process of perceived emasculation The essays examine the historiographic and socio cultural implications of the role of women in the narratives and writing of architectural history with particular reference to Western traditions of scholarship on the period 1600 1950 Rather than subscribing to a single position individual voices critically engage with past and present canonical histories disclosing assumptions biases and absences in the architectural historiography of the West This book is a crucial reflection upon historiographical practice exploring potential openings that may contribute further transformation of the theory and methods of architectural history Chapter 9 of this book is freely available as a downloadable Open Access PDF at <http://www.taylorfrancis.com> under a Creative Commons Attribution NonCommercial NoDerivatives CC BY NC ND 4.0 International license

The Non-Representation of the Agricultural Labourers in 18th and 19th Century English Paintings Penelope McElwee,2016-02-08 The life of the poor rural worker appears to have been one of unmitigated toil within an unequal society a reality seldom endorsed in paintings of the eighteenth and early nineteenth centuries The contemporary viewer who constituted less than three per cent of the population wished to see visions of the idyllic golden landscapes of Merrie England peopled by happy contented workers or alternatively images of the Big House a feature and phenomenon now marching over the countryside fed by a new building frenzy This particular element would soon evolve into an all consuming preoccupation for the wealthy throughout the period Members of the upper echelons of society with their families all attired in fine silks and satins look out at their audience from ornately framed canvases as individuals Yet the rural poor the rabble at the gates the unseen workforce who toiled at the behest of the Master are virtually unknown They have left few records Enclosure came at a price The Poorhouse beckoned And still the agricultural labourer did virtually nothing for most of the eighteenth century to protest or rebel against the inequalities of his downtrodden existence Only the dreaded behemoth of the nineteenth century the threshing machine would stir him into action How would it end

American Architect ,1895 American Architect and Building News ,1895 A History of Architectural Modelmaking in Britain David Lund,2022-12-16 Architectural modelmakers have long carried out their work hidden behind the scenes of architectural design and in presenting a history of architectural modelmaking in Britain for the first time this book casts a new light on their remarkable skills and achievements By telling the story of the modelmakers who make architectural models rather than architects who commission and use them this book seeks to celebrate their often overlooked contribution to the success and endurance of the architectural model in Britain over the past one hundred and forty years Drawing from extensive archival research and interviews with practicing and retired modelmakers this book traces the complete history of architectural modelmaking in Britain from its initial emergence as a specialist occupation at the end of the nineteenth century through to the present day It reveals the legacy of John Thorp the first professional architectural modelmaker in Britain who opened his business in London in 1883 and charts the lives and careers of the innovative and creative modelmakers who followed him It examines the continually evolving materials tools and processes of architectural modelmaking and outlines the profound ideological economic and technological influences that have shaped the profession s development Illustrated with over one hundred photographs of architectural models from previously undocumented archives this book will be of great interest to architectural modelmakers academics and historians as well as anyone with an interest in architectural history and modelmaking Architecture Re-assembled Trevor

Garnham,2013-04-26 Beginning from the rise of modern history in the eighteenth century this book examines how changing ideas in the discipline of history itself has affected architecture from the beginning of modernity up to the present day It reflects upon history in order to encourage and assist the reader in finding well founded principles for architectural design This is not simply another history of architecture nor a history of histories Setting buildings in their contemporaneous ideas about history it spans from Fischer von Erlach to Venturi and Rossi and beyond to architects working in the fallout from both the Modern Movement Aalto Louis Kahn Aldo van Eyck and Post modernism such as Rafael Moneo and Peter Zumthor It shows how Soane Schinkel and Stirling amongst others made a meaningful use of history and contrasts this with how a misreading of Hegel has led to an abuse of history and an uncritical flight to the future This is not an armchair history but a lively discussion of our place between past and future that promotes thinking for making
