EPA-600/5, 1974-02 The Jobless Future Stanley Aronowitz, 1994 The Jobless Future challenges beliefs in the utopian promise of a knowledge based high technology economy Reviewing a vast body of encouraging literature about the postindustrial age Aronowitz and DiFazio conclude that neither theory history nor contemporary evidence warrants optimism about a technological economic order Instead they demonstrate the shift toward a massive displacement of employees at all levels and a large scale degradation of the labor force As they clearly chart a major change in the nature scope and amount of paid work the authors suggest that notions of justice and the good life based on full employment must change radically as well They close by proposing alternatives to our dying job culture that might help us sustain ourselves and our well being in a science and technology based economic future One alternative discussed is reducing the workday to fewer hours without reducing pay

The Technological Fix Lisa Rosner, 2013-02-01 The term technological fix should mean a fix provided by technology a solution for all of our problems from medicine and food production to the environment and business Instead technological fix has come to mean a cheap quick fix using inappropriate technology that usually creates more problems than it solves This collection sets out the distinction between a technological fix and a true technological solution Bringing together scholars from a variety of disciplines the essays trace the technological fix as it has appeared throughout the twentieth century Addressing such fixes as artificial hearts industrial agriculture and climate engineering these essays examine our need to turn to technology for solutions to all of our problems

Water from Heaven Robert S. Kandel, 2003 Covering a vast array of scientific fields and recent discoveries this book tracks a remarkable substance in its liquid solid and gaseous states as it cycles through the seas the atmosphere land icecaps and under the earth Robert Kandel describes what we humans are doing to the water cycle and the climate and explains where we are heading

The Anthropology of Complex Economic Systems Niccolo Leo Caldararo, 2013-11-14 Today we live in what Ulrich Beck has aptly characterized as a risk society shaped by intensifying crises outside of our control and seemingly outside of our comprehension The master narrative that was supposed to lead us to secular salvation economics has proved to be a large part of the problem rather than the much anticipated solution In The Anthropology of Complex Economic Systems Niccolo Caldararo offers a much more radical and challenging answer that the fundamental assumptions on which the modern science of economics has been erected are false and that it is through the medium of anthropology particularly the relatively neglected field of economic anthropology that an alternative and sound basis for both the understanding of economic behavior and for the shaping of economic futures can be constructed Caldararo not only challenges the foundational assumptions of conventional economic theory but situates economic behavior something quite different and universal amongst human beings in both a historical and an ecological context Contemporary discussions of sustainability especially in the field of development studies have oddly neglected to look to anthropology Economic anthropology is the repository of a vast store of wisdom both about actual alternative and workable economic systems and about their evolution By drawing on this source Caldararo builds a model of the evolution of human economies which stir up substantial debate shows how economic anthropology provides a tool for the interrogation of economic theory and ties economics to ecology It has been the rupture of this fundamental relationship that lies at the basis of much of our present crisis and the unsustainable economic patterns that humans have created By bringing together in a new configuration economic anthropology ecology and culture history Caldararo not only proposes a new model of human social evolution but equally importantly creates a methodology for speaking to and against our present economic and environmental situation
