Recession Crime And Punishment:

Recession, Crime and Punishment Steven Box,1987-08-21 We are often told that unemployment is no excuse for committing crimes It certainly does not follow as many in government would have use believe that crime is unrelated to social conditions Examining a mass of evidence from Great Britain the United States Canada and other industrialised countries Steven Box shows how criminal activity increased with unemployment poverty and sharpened competition between firms He demonstrates that corporate as well as individual crime is affected by the experience of recession and that changing pressures and opportunities alter the character and distribution of deviance as well as increasing its incidence Although deterioration in material circumstances does lead to more crime however it does not alone account for the massive increase in prison populations or increasingly repressive systems of social control These developments the author argues flow more from government attempts to restructure the labour force and the natural reaction of minor state officials like judges police and probation officers to the changing logic of their situations
