Protecting Human Rights and Building Peace in Post-Violence Societies Nasia Hadjigeorgiou, 2020-02-20 This book critically examines the relationship between protecting human rights and building peace in post violence societies It explores the conditions that must be present and strategies that should be adopted for the former to contribute to the latter The author argues that human rights can aid peacebuilding efforts by helping victims of past violence to articulate their grievance and by encouraging the state to respond to and provide them with a meaningful remedy This usually happens either through a process of adjudication whereby human rights can offer guidance to the judiciary as to the best way to address such grievances or through the passing and implementation of human rights laws and policies that seek to promote peace However this positive relationship between human rights and peace is both qualified and context specific Through an interdisciplinary and comparative analysis of four case studies the book identifies the conditions that can support the effective use of human rights as peacebuilding tools Developing these the book recommends a series of strategies that peacebuilders should adopt and rely on Winner of the Constantinos Emilianides Award in Law for 2020 joint conferment

Corporatism, Social Control, and Cultural Domination in Education: From the Radical Right to Globalization

Joel Spring, 2012-11-27 Starting with the 1972 publication of his seminal work Education and the Rise of the Corporate State Joel Spring has been documenting and analyzing the politics of knowledge and education Throughout his work he has explored the attempts to use education to advance the economic and political interests of dominant groups The general term he uses for the relationship between schools and power is ideological management His scholarly work first looked at the influence on American schooling of business and economic doctrines embodied in human capital theories and consumerism The next step in his exploration of the politics of knowledge was to examine these issues in the context of globalization leading to a proposed educational rights amendment to national constitutions and a new paradigm for education both of which might ensure that schools are protected from ideological management by economic and political elites Spring s indigenous background has strongly shaped his interest in the political and economic goals of schooling particularly the attempts of those in power to use schools to destroy indigenous languages and cultures In this collection Spring brings together 10 of his key writings providing an overview not just of his own career but the larger contexts in which it is situated In the Introduction he reviews the evolution and scope of his work and his earlier arguments and reflects on its central themes which are reflected in the writings selected for this volume In the World Library of Educationalists international scholars themselves compile career long collections of what they judge to be their finest pieces extracts from books key articles salient research findings major theoretical and practical contributions so the world can read them in a single manageable volume Readers will be able to follow the themes and strands of their work and see their contribution to the

Clotfelter, 2011-10-16 The United States Supreme Court's 1954 landmark decision Brown v Board of Education set into motion a process of desegregation that would eventually transform American public schools This book provides a comprehensive and up to date assessment of how Brown's most visible effect contact between students of different racial groups has changed over the fifty years since the decision Using both published and unpublished data on school enrollments from across the country Charles Clotfelter uses measures of interracial contact racial isolation and segregation to chronicle the changes He goes beyond previous studies by drawing on heretofore unanalyzed enrollment data covering the first decade after Brown calculating segregation for metropolitan areas rather than just school districts accounting for private schools presenting recent information on segregation within schools and measuring segregation in college enrollment Two main conclusions emerge First interracial contact in American schools and colleges increased markedly over the period with the most dramatic changes occurring in the previously segregated South Second despite this change four main factors prevented even larger increases white reluctance to accept racially mixed schools the multiplicity of options for avoiding such schools the willingness of local officials to accommodate the wishes of reluctant whites and the eventual loss of will on the part of those who had been the strongest protagonists in the push for desegregation Thus decreases in segregation within districts were partially offset by growing disparities between districts and by selected increases in private school enrollment
