Sikh Identity Opinderjit Kaur Takhar,2016-12-05 It is commonly assumed that all Sikhs are the same but the very existence of different groups who have varying beliefs and practices within the Sikh community shows that a corporate identity for the Sikh community is not possible and serves to alienate a substantial proportion of Sikhs from the overall fold of the Sikh faith. Introducing the beliefs and practices of a range of individual Sikh groups, this book addresses the issue of Sikh identity across the Sikh community as a whole but from the viewpoint of different types of Sikh. Examining the historical development of Sikhism from the period of Guru Nanak to the present day, the author takes an in-depth look at five groups in the Sikh community: the Guru Nanak Nishkam Sewak Jatha, the Namdharis, the Ravidasis, the Valmikis, and the Sikh Dharma of the Western Hemisphere associated with the Healthy Happy Holy Organization (3HO). Their history, beliefs, and practices are explored as well as their diverse and shared identities. Concluding that there is no authoritative yardstick with which to assess the issue of Sikh identity, the author highlights Sikhism's links to its Hindu past and suggests a federal Sikh identity with one or two fundamental beliefs at the core, and individual groups left to express their own unique beliefs and practices.

What is a Sikh? Sukhwinder Kaur Basra, 2020-12-17. My hope is to reinvigorate the minds of children about the fundamentals of Sikhi. Sikhi is one of the world's main religions, and we live in a multicultural world, so it is very important for everyone to have a basic understanding of all religions. Sikhi is the fifth largest religion of the world. It is also one of the youngest world religions. Sikhi is over 550 years old and was founded by Guru Nanak Ji. Today there are approximately 26 million Sikhs around the world.

Sikhs in Asia Pacific Swarn Singh Kahlon, 2016-09-13. This book is the second in a global trilogy looking at the unreported Sikh diaspora comprising mainly the non-English speaking countries. The first one in the Sikh Global Village series was Sikhs in Latin America, published by Manohar. This volume covers Sikhs in Asia Pacific countries. The third will be on Sikhs in Europe. The Asia Pacific region is a vital and under-recognized home for the Sikh diaspora. Before 1947, most Sikhs migrated East. In addition to the commonly known destinations, the author also examines lesser-known cases of Sikh migration to China, Korea, Japan, and the Philippines. The book covers various aspects of the diaspora, including the history of migration relating to the British Indian Army police force. The British gave preference in recruiting Sikhs and encouraged them to build gurdwaras and supported them to keep their Sikh identity. Soon after arrival, these early immigrants encouraged their village compatriots and relatives to migrate in large numbers to avail of the various opportunities for gainful employment or business. Not only is this wave of migration important in its own right, but Sikh migration to North America finds its origins in the Asia Pacific Sikh diaspora, specifically from Shanghai. The decolonization of Asian countries slowed down the migration, and in some cases resulted even in exodus of Indians. Sikhs, at the same time, as new destinations to North America and UK opened up. Migration to each country has a unique profile, traced vividly in the book. Additionally, the author has made an effort to outline the similarities and differences in migration of Sikhs to the East against present migration to the West. Case studies are extensively used.
