Regionalism And The Female Imagination:

Comedy and the Woman Writer Judy Little, 2015-08-01 Recent critics have affirmed the difficulty perhaps the impossibility of defining modern comedy at the same time some feminist scholars are seeking to understand the special comedy often present in literature written by women Comedy and the Woman Writer responds to both these concerns of recent criticism feminist literary theory and theories of comedy Judy Little develops a critical apparatus for identifying feminist comedy in recent fiction especially the radical political and psychological implications of this comedy and then applies and tests her theory by examining the novels of Virginia Woolf and Muriel Spark Despite recent scholarly attention to Woolf the profound comedy of her work has been largely overlooked and the comic fiction of Spark has seldom had the responsible and attentive criticism that it deserves The introductory chapter draws upon anthropology and sociology as well as literary criticism and the fiction of feminist writers such as Woolf Doris Lessing and Monique Wittig to define a modern feminist comedy Four central chapters then explore the implications of this comedy in the novels of Woolf and Spark Little distinguishes between on the one hand several varieties of traditional comedy and satire and on the other the festive or liminal comedy to which feminist comedy belongs Both Woolf and Spark mock centuries old mythic patterns and behaviors deriving from basic social norms as well as the values emerging from these norms It is one thing the author points out to find manners amusing to scourge vices or to mock the follies of lovers it is a much more drastic act of the imagination to mock the very norms against which comedy has traditionally judged vices follies and eccentricities While the comedy of Woolf and Spark has some precedent in festive or liminal celebrations during which even basic values and behavior are abandoned feminist comedy displays its radical nature by implying that there is no resolution to the inverted overturned world the world in revolutionary transition The final chapter considers briefly in the light of the critical model of feminist comedy the work of several other twentieth century writers including Jean Rhys Penelope Moritmer and Margaret Drabble The presence of radical comedy in the fiction of these and other writers suggests the need for continuing attention to the theory of feminist comedy proposed in this study

Daniel G. Payne, 2009-05-05 At the time of his death in 1921 John Burroughs 1837 1921 was America's most beloved nature writer a best selling author whose friends and admirers included Walt Whitman Theodore Roosevelt John Muir Henry Ford and Thomas Edison Burroughs was second only to Emerson in fostering the nature study movement of the nineteenth century and the popularity of his work inspired Houghton Mifflin to publish or reissue the work of numerous other nature writers including that of Thoreau and Muir His first collection of essays Wake Robin was published in 1871 and over the next fifty years Burroughs wrote almost two dozen books and hundreds of essays not only on nature but on literature travel philosophy religion and science By the turn of the century Burroughs was America's most beloved nature writer whose friends and admirers included Walt Whitman Theodore Roosevelt John Muir Henry Ford and Thomas Edison Burroughs died in 1921 while on a train ride back to his New York from California His final words Are we home yet were a remarkably fitting coda to the career of a writer so closely identified with his native Catskill region of New York State In many of his essays Burroughs explores the woods and fields of home and in doing so like Henry Thoreau and his explorations of Concord Massachusetts he transcends the local and examines the universal theme of our relation with nature and our native landscape Burroughs's emphasis on place and the local now seems modern once again as the current interest in bioregionalism and climate change demonstrates it has become increasingly evident that thinking locally is thinking globally Since 1992 the SUNY College at Oneonta has hosted the biannual John Burroughs Nature Conference and Seminar Sharp Eyes which honors the influence of Burroughs on American nature writing Distinguished keynote speakers who have addressed the conference include John Elder John Tallmadge Joy Harjo Robin Wall Kimmerer Edward Kanze James Perrin Warren and Edward J. Rinehan Jr The scope of the conference is not limited solely to Burroughs however as each year the writers and scholars in attendance direct their attention toward a particular issue of significance to contemporary nature writers and scholars of environmental literature The theme of this collection Writing the Land: John Burroughs and his Legacy was featured in the 2006 conference and includes essays on John Burroughs as well as essays on the work of other writers who like Burroughs are linked closely through their work to a particular landscape or region The third and final section of this book features invited essays by three distinguished scholars John Tallmadge Robert Beuka and Charlotte Zo Walker who consider the topic of what writing about the land and nature means from three different perspectives urban suburban and rural Kate M. concepts heretofore applied exclusively to naturally occurring child language The aim is not to evaluate the degree of realism in writers presentations of child language for that would be a simplistic and reductive enterprise Rather the overall object is to analyze fictional child language using linguistic methods

Reading for Realism Nancy Glazener, 1997 Reading for Realism presents a new approach to U S literary history that is based on the analysis of dominant reading practices rather than on the production of texts Nancy Glazener's focus is the realist novel the most influential literary form of the nineteenth and twentieth centuries a form she contends was only made possible by changes in the expectations of readers about pleasure and literary value By tracing readers collaboration in the production of literary forms Reading for Realism turns nineteenth century controversies about the realist romance and sentimental novels into episodes in the history of readership It also shows how works of fiction by Rebecca Harding Davis Henry James Nathaniel Hawthorne and others participated in the debates about literary classification and reading that in turn created and shaped their audiences Combining reception theory with a materialist analysis of the social formations in which realist reading practices circulated Glazener's study reveals the elitist underpinnings of literary realism At the book's center is the Atlantic group of magazines whose influence was part of the cultural machinery of the Northeastern urban bourgeoisie and crucial to the development of literary realism in America Glazener shows how the promotion of realism by this group of publications also meant a consolidation of privilege primarily in terms of class gender race and region for the audience it served Thus American realism so often portrayed as a quintessentially populist form actually served to enforce existing structures of class and power
