Regionalism Versus Multilateral Trade Arrangements:

Regionalism versus Multilateral Trade Arrangements Takatoshi Ito, Anne O. Krueger, 2007-12-01 There is no doubt that the open multilateral trading system after World War II was a key ingredient in the rapid economic development of the entire world Especially in Hong Kong Korea Singapore and Taiwan exports increased dramatically both in absolute terms and as a percentage of GNP In the 1980s however preferential trading arrangements PTAs began to emerge as significant factors affecting world trade This volume contains thirteen papers that analyze the tensions between multilateral trading systems and preferential trade arrangements and the impact of these tensions on East Asia The first four chapters introduce PTAs conceptually and focus on the unique political issues that these agreements involve The next five essays present more direct empirical analyses of existing PTAs and their economic effects primarily in East Asia The last four papers concentrate on the outcomes of individual East Asian nations trading policies in specific instances of preferential agreements Multilateralism Versus Regionalism Meine Pieter van Dijk, Sandro Sideri, 2005-06-28 The issue of regionalism versus multilateral agreements such as the Uruguay Round remains a crucial one as is argued in the first five chapters of this volume Regionalism versus Multilateralism L. Alan Winters, 1999 November 1996 Do the forces that regional integration arrangements set up encourage or discourage a trend toward globally freer trade We don't know yet The literature on regionalism versus multilateralism is growing as economists and political scientists grapple with the question of whether regional integration arrangements are good or bad for the multilateral system Are regional integration arrangements building blocks or stumbling blocks in Jagdish Bhagwati's phrase or stepping stones toward multilateralism As economists worry about the ability of the World Trade Organization to maintain the GATT's unsteady yet distinct momentum toward liberalism and as they contemplate the emergence of world scale regional integration arrangements the EU NAFTA FTAA APEC and possibly TAFTA the question has never been more pressing Winters switches the focus from the immediate consequences of regionalism for the economic welfare of the integrating partners to the question of whether it sets up forces that encourage or discourage evolution toward globally freer trade The answer is We don't know yet One can build models that suggest either conclusion but these models are still so abstract that they should be viewed as parables rather than sources of testable predictions Winters offers conclusions about research strategy as well as about the world we live in Among the conclusions he reaches Since we value multilateralism we had better work out what it means and if it means different things to different people make sure to identify the sense in which we are using the term Sector specific lobbies are a danger if regionalism is permitted because they tend to stop blocs from moving all the way to global free trade In the presence of lobbies trade diversion is good politics even if it is bad economics Regionalism's direct effect on multilateralism is important but possibly more so is the indirect effect it has by changing the ways in which groups of countries interact and respond to shocks in the world economy Regionalism by allowing stronger internalization of the gains from trade liberalization seems likely to facilitate freer trade

when it is initially highly restricted The possibility of regionalism probably increases the risks of catastrophe in the trading system The insurance incentives for joining regional arrangements and the existence of shiftable externalities both lead to such a conclusion So too does the view that regionalism is a means to bring trade partners to the multilateral negotiating table because it is essentially coercive Using regionalism for this purpose may have been an effective strategy but it is also risky This paper a product of the International Trade Division International Economics Department was prepared for a conference on regional integration sponsored by the Centre for Economic Policy Research La Coru a Spain April 26 27 1996 and will appear in the conference proceedings

Regionalism Versus Multilateralism Christopher R. Thomas, Juliana T. Magloire, 2012-12-06 In today's globalized international system international and regional organizations can only function effectively within the context of a larger social partnership with governments the private sectors and a plethora of increasingly influential interest groups Regionalism Versus Multilateralism seeks to illustrate these new roles by tracing the way the Organization of American States OAS the oldest regional organization has pursued its objectives in the context of evolving hemispheric and international circumstances It analyzes the impact of these circumstances on the operations programs and activities of the Organization and the adjustments and direction which metamorphosed the regional membership at certain crucial junctures of hemispheric and international evolution The book does so in three parts through an historic examination of the objectives of the Organization a critical analysis of its response over time to the forces of growth transformation and change and the projection of what continuing developments might dictate on the future characteristics of the Organization if it is to respond effectively to the needs and aspirations of member states This book is a collaboration between Christopher R Thomas and Julian T Magloire with both parties contributing equally to its content and preparation

Hirata, Mr. Ayhan Kose, Mr. Christopher Otrok, 2013-01-22 Abstract Both global and regional economic linkages have strengthened substantially over the past quarter century We employ a dynamic factor model to analyze the implications of these linkages for the evolution of global and regional business cycles Our model allows us to assess the roles played by the global regional and country specific factors in explaining business cycles in a large sample of countries and regions over the period 1960 2010 We find that since the mid 1980s the importance of regional factors has increased markedly in explaining business cycles especially in regions that experienced a sharp growth in intra regional trade and financial flows By contrast the relative importance of the global factor has declined over the same period In short the recent era of globalization has witnessed the emergence of regional business cycles

The Oxford Handbook of Comparative Regionalism Tanja A. Börzel, Thomas

Risse, 2016-02-04. The Oxford Handbook of Comparative Regionalism, the first of its kind, offers a systematic and wide-ranging survey of the scholarship on regionalism, regionalization and regional governance. Unpacking the major debates, leading authors of the field synthesize the state of the art, provide a guide to the comparative study of regionalism and identify future avenues of research. Twenty-seven chapters review the theoretical and empirical scholarship with regard to the emergence of regionalism, the institutional design of regional organizations and issue-specific governance as well as the effects of regionalism and its relationship with processes of regionalization. The authors explore theories of cooperation, integration and diffusion, explaining the rise and the different forms of regionalism. The handbook also discusses the state of the art on the world regions: North America, Latin America, Europe, Eurasia, Asia, North Africa and the Middle East, and Sub-Saharan Africa. Various chapters survey the literature on regional governance in major issue areas such as security and peace, trade and finance, environment, migration, social and gender policies as well as democracy and human rights. Finally, the handbook engages in cross-regional comparisons with regard to institutional design, dispute settlement, identities and communities, legitimacy and democracy as well as inter and transregionalism. Southeast Asia Transformed Chia Lin Sien, 2003.

Southeast Asia, with a total population of 520 million, remains a region characterized by fragmentation, diversity and considerable internal conflict despite the unifying influence of the Association of Southeast Asian Nations (ASEAN), formed some thirty-five years ago. In the new millennium, it has lost the distinction of being one of the world's faster-growing groups of economies since the 1997 financial crisis. While it has benefited from the winds of globalization, it has now to cope with the painful adjustments to problems that stem from the inadequacies of good governance and structural changes. A Social

Theory of the WTO J. Ford, 2003-08-19. Traditional theories suggest that developing countries lack influence in the trade regime. In this text, Jane Ford uses a social theory or constructivist approach to show that developing countries played a critical role in strengthening multilateralism in the World Trade Organization. Regional Economic Integration and

Dispute Settlement in East Asia Anna G. Tevini, 2018-06-28. The accession of the People's Republic of China to the World Trade Organization (WTO) in 2001 significantly transformed the global economy both de facto and de jure. At the regional level, China's WTO accession served as an important catalyst for the establishment of Regional Trade Agreements (RTAs) in East Asia. This was a novel development for the region since East Asian States had previously followed a largely informal market-driven approach to regional economic integration. By contrast, rules-based economic integration involving East Asian States was traditionally limited to multilateral integration under the GATT WTO framework This book systematically analyses and explains the development nature and challenges of rules based regional economic integration in East Asia with particular attention to the region s first four RTAs While also addressing the socio economic historical and political factors influencing the development of RTAs in East Asia the book focuses on the legal institutions governing economic integration in the Association of Southeast Asian Nations ASEAN as well as under the ASEAN China Comprehensive Economic Co Operation Agreement ACFTA the Japan Singapore New Age Economic Partnership Agreement JSEPA and the Mainland China Hong Kong Closer Economic Partnership Arrangement CEPA The book provides a systematic comparative account of the scope depth and hard law versus soft law quality of rules based economic integration achieved under these four RTAs in the areas of trade in goods and services investment liberalisation and protection labour mobility and dispute settlement
