Rome Convention - Rome I Regulation Alexander J. Belohlávek, 2011-01-01 As of 17 December 2010 the Rome I Regulation EU Regulation 593/2008 on the law applicable to contractual obligations is directly applicable in all EU Member States with the exception of Denmark The Rome I Regulation replaces the Rome Convention of 1980 in the EU Member States and will apply to all contracts concluded as of 17 December 2010 However and herein lies the utility and great importance of this work the Rome Convention and the Rome I Regulation will be applied in parallel for a significant time to come the author himself anticipates a ten to fifteen year period in the latter case to contracts made after 17 December 2010 This is why this commentary takes into account both sources of law in their mutual interaction and broader context The comprehensiveness of the Rome Convention Rome I Regulation is clearly apparent but one of the great achievements of the author is his amassing of over 1 800 judicial decisions most of which are furnished with a detailed commentary where these decisions apply national laws the latter are cited both in the original and in translation For a number of rulings the commentary include not only a case summary of the facts and an analysis of the conclusions drawn by the court but also takes them as models to hypothesize what conclusions would be reached if the Rome I Regulation were to be applied

Climate Change and Political Strategy Hugh Compston,2013-09-13 Although the science of climate change is well established and there are well known policy instruments that could significantly reduce greenhouse gas GHG emissions without prohibitive economic costs political obstacles to more determined action remain despite heightened concern among mainstream politicians and the public This book analyses the political dynamics of climate policy in affluent democracies from a number of different theoretical angles in order to improve our understanding of which political strategies would be likely to enable national governments to make deep cuts in GHG emissions while avoiding significant political damage The authors argue that different conceptual and logical theories highlight different features of political situations Describing the politics of climate policy in this way will result in different conceptual logical views of this phenomenon And to some extent the inferences drawn from such differing views about the nature of political obstacles to more vigorous action on climate change and the best ways of overcoming them will also be different Singly and together these analyses reveal a more detailed nuanced view of the political options open to activist governments This book was previously published as a special issue of Environmental Politics

Private Sector-Led Urban Development Projects Erwin Heurkens, 2012-09-04 Central to Private Sector led Urban Development Projects lays the concept of private sector led urban development projects Such projects involve project developers taking a leading role and local authorities adopting a facilitating role in managing the development of an urban area based on a clear public private role division Such a development strategy is quite common in Anglo Saxon urban development practices but is less known in Continental European practices Nonetheless since the beginning of the millennium such a development strategy also occurred in the Netherlands in the form of concessions However remarkably little empirical knowledge is available about how public and private actors collaborate on and manage private sector led urban development projects Moreover it remains unclear what the effects of such projects are This dissertation provides an understanding of the various characteristics of private sector led urban development projects by conducting empirical case study research in the institutional contexts of the Netherlands and the UK The book provides an answer to the following question What can we learn from private sector led urban development projects in the Netherlands and UK in terms of the collaborative and managerial roles of public and private actors and the effects of their inter actions
