

Relational Epistemologies for a Living Planet

How do we go about arriving at “truths”, together? Not “timeless” truths, but useful truths, situated ones, something that helps this group, this organization, this community, find its own way forward? As a practitioner of group facilitation, I have developed certain practical knowledge about this; as a theorist and researcher-in-training, I have begun to explore long-standing questions about how our conventional cognitive habits might create difficulties for this work. In this essay, I will be exploring a variety of academic theorists who question our ingrained cultural assumptions about argumentation, while also pointing to some useful alternatives.

Forty years ago, in Metaphors We Live By, cognitive linguist George Lakoff and philosopher Mark Johnson invited us to become more conscious of our cultural patterns by observing how arguments, one aspect of our society’s search for truth, are organized through the metaphor of “war” (he “attacked” my position, she “defended” her thesis):

ARGUMENT is partially structured, understood, performed, and talked about in terms of WAR. [...] The language of argument is not poetic, fanciful, or rhetorical; it is literal. We talk about arguments that way because we conceive of them that way – and we act according to the way we conceive things. (1980, p. 5)¹

Lakoff and Johnson point out that even “rational argument”, the specialized subset of argument that prevails in the worlds of academia, law, and diplomacy, is still structured by war. Ostensibly restricted to stating premises, citing evidence, and drawing logical conclusions, “there is still a position to be established and defended, you can win or lose, you have an opponent whose position you attack and destroy and whose argument you try to shoot down” (p. 64). Their examples show how there is often present, in a subtle form, “the ‘irrational’ and ‘unfair’ tactics that rational arguments in their ideal form are supposed to transcend” (p. 65).

On the whole, academic culture as a whole still lacks a coherent alternative to the culture of argumentation. Here is the experience of AnaLouise Keating, multicultural women’s and gender studies professor:

¹ Lakoff and Johnson’s work on the metaphorical foundations of language was part of their invitation to move beyond the “myth of objectivism” and the “myth of subjectivism” to “the experientialist alternative” where “understanding emerges from interaction” (1980, p. 230).

Relational Epistemologies:

Indigenous Research Methodologies Bagele Chilisa, 2012 Following the increasing emphasis in the classroom and in the field to sensitize researchers and students to diverse epistemologies methods and methodologies especially those of women minority groups former colonized societies indigenous people historically oppressed communities and people with disabilities author Bagele Chilisa has written the first research methods textbook that situates research in a larger historical cultural and global context with case studies from around the globe to make very visible the specific methodologies that are commensurate with the transformative paradigm of research and the historical and cultural traditions of indigenous peoples Chapters cover the history of research methods colonial epistemologies research within postcolonial societies relational epistemologies emergent and indigenous methodologies Afrocentric research feminist research language frameworks interviewing and building partnerships between researchers and the researched The book comes replete with traditional textbook features such as key points exercises and suggested readings which makes it ideally suited for graduate courses in research methods especially in education health women s studies cultural studies sociology and related social sciences

Decentering Epistemologies and Challenging Privilege Sophie Bourgault, Maggie FitzGerald, Fiona Robinson, 2024 Care ethics first emerged as an attempt to decenter ethics feminist scholars like Carol Gilligan argued that women s moral experiences were not reflected in the dominant masculinist approaches to ethics which were centered on a rational disembodied atomistic moral subject Care ethics challenged this model by positing ethics as relational contextualized embodied and realized through practices rather than principles Over the past decades many care ethics scholars have sought to further this project by considering care politically and epistemologically in relation to various intersecting hierarchies of power and knowledge This book advances this project by discussing the ways care ethics contributes to the decentering of dominant epistemologies and to the challenging of privilege and by considering how to decenter care ethics itself via an encounter with non Western philosophical traditions and alternative epistemologies Written by scholars from different countries disciplines and intellectual traditions the volume offers original care ethics contributions on epistemic injustice privileged irresponsibility ecofeminism settler colonialism social movements such as BLM and various racialized and gendered inequities tied to care work

Philosophical Foundations of Mixed Methods Research Yafeng Shan, 2023-12-01 Philosophical Foundations of Mixed Methods Research provides a comprehensive examination of the philosophical foundations of mixed methods research It offers new defences of the seven main approaches to mixed methods the pragmatist approach the transformative approach the indigenous approach the dialectical approach the dialectical pluralist approach the performative approach and the realist approach written by leading mixed methods researchers Each approach is accompanied by critical reflections chapter from philosophers point of view The book shows the value of the use of mixed methods from a philosophical point of view and offers a systematic and critical examination of these positions and approaches from a philosophical point of view The volume also offers a platform to promote a dialogue between mixed methods researchers and philosophers of science and provides foundations for further research and teaching of this hotly debated topic This volume is ideal for researchers and advanced students and anyone who is interested in research methods and the social sciences more generally

Feminist Theory and International Law Emily Jones, 2023-01-31 Feminist approaches to international law have been mischaracterised by the mainstream of the discipline as being a niche field that pertains only to women's lived experiences and their participation in decision making processes Exemplifying how feminist approaches can be used to analyse all areas of international law this book applies posthuman feminist theory to examine the regulation of new and emerging military technologies international environmental law and the conceptualisation of the sovereign state and other modes of legal personality in international law Noting that most posthuman scholarship to date is primarily theoretical this book also contributes to the field of posthumanism through its application of posthuman feminism to international law working to bridge the theory and practice divide by using posthuman feminism to design and call for legal change This interdisciplinary book draws on an array of fields including philosophy queer and feminist theories postcolonial and critical race theories computer science critical disability studies science and technology studies marine biology cultural and media studies Indigenous onto epistemologies critical legal theory political science and beyond to provide a holistic analysis of international law and its inclusions and exclusions This interdisciplinary book will appeal to students and scholars with interests in legal feminist and posthuman theory as well as those concerned with the contemporary challenges faced by international law
