Halsall, 2024-11-15 Housing has always had a close association with the lives refugees lead in exile and the settlement of refugees is at its core a housing issue Refugees move from their home perhaps through various other places to finally arrive in a nation state which provides them with security of status and the promise of assistance to continue their lives At the foundation of this promise of refuge is the provision of a safe and secure home Despite this the knowledge base about housing and its significance in the lives of refugees is not fully understood and this risks understating the enormous impact housing has on the settlement of refugees more broadly This book makes an important contribution to the literature on the relationship between sanctuary and housing. It draws on new empirical research to examine how refugees have transitioned through the housing system over the last three decades and how changes in policy and the routes into refugee status have mediated these experiences. Social Care and Housing Ian Shaw, David Clapham, 1998. Drawing out the implications for policy and practice from the latest research in housing and social work, this volume illustrates the lack of communication between practitioners that is hindering service provision and provides suggestions for improving current practice. The contributors examine the relationship of such factors as youth, gender, race, education, poverty, health, social exclusion, and housing developments to the provision of housing for those in need. Social workers have many clients, including young people leaving care, offenders, people with disabilities or mental health problems, and those at risk of domestic violence, for example, who require intervention on their behalf to meet their housing needs. Social Care and Housing argues that professionals need to be aware of the role of wider social problems, in particular poor housing, in reinforcing the deprivation of the lowest income groups that form the bulk of service users. The contributors suggest that raising the profile of housing and welfare research within the social services and encouraging practitioners and educators to introduce a broader social context into practice would improve understanding of the relationship between housing and social care. They also examine strategies for formulating coherent responses to client problems and explore the development of practice at the boundaries of social care and housing. Housing Rights Roger Sproston, 2013-07-25. A Straightforward Guide to Housing Rights is a comprehensive guide to all aspects of housing law in the United Kingdom. Housing law is complex and varied, and this book is a clear and concise introduction to the overall framework of law governing all tenure types. The book builds on the successful previous edition, introducing new legislation. The book is practical and is ideal for those who wish to either learn the subject from new or who wish to brush up on their knowledge of this area and to acquaint themselves with new legislation. Health Visiting Anne Robotham, Marion Frost, 2005-08-29. This book is an essential resource for health visiting students that reflects the key changes required of health visiting practice at the beginning of the new millennium. It is a key text for specialist practitioner programmes and also for existing practitioners who are furthering their practice and academic development. It brings together the elements of theory and practice which are essential to health visiting practice. The book is research-based and uses relevant evidence to support discussions. A particular strength is the use of case studies and practice examples to illustrate the theoretical discussions. Comprehensive coverage of all areas of health visiting practice will give the new practitioner confidence. Case studies help to relate the theory to practice. The up-to-date evidence base includes the latest research. The wide range of contributors ensures that the content is written by experts in their field. Coverage of aggression and violence, the needs of ethnic minorities, and complementary therapies reflects the growing role of the HV in relation to contemporary issues. Fully updated throughout to reflect changes in practice, including re-organisation of the health care service, changes in social policy, child protection, and

The Culture of Homelessness Megan Ravenhill, 2016-03-16 Despite an extensive literature on homelessness there is surprisingly little work that investigates the roots of homelessness by tracking homeless people over time In this fascinating and much needed ethnographic study Megan Ravenhill presents the results of ten years research on the streets and in the hostels and day centres of the UK incorporating intensive interviews with 150 homeless and formerly homeless people as well as policy makers and professionals working with homeless people Ravenhill discusses the biographical structural and behavioural factors that lead to homelessness Amongst the important and unique features of the study are the use of life route maps showing the circumstances and decisions that lead to homelessness a systematic study of the timescales involved and a survey of people s exit routes from homelessness Ravenhill also identifies factors that predict those most vulnerable to homelessness and factors that prevent or considerably delay the onset of homelessness

Housing and the Credit Crunch Great Britain. Parliament. House of Commons. Communities and Local Government Committee, 2009 In this report the Communities and Local Government Committee says the Government must stick to its long term house building targets despite the credit crunch but a greater proportion of the homes built should be social housing The Committee is concerned that the 975 million borrowed by the Government from its 2010 11 budgets to build social rented housing now is not new money and that the Government has been unable to say how that borrowing will be replaced The Committee urges the Department for Communities and Local Government to put pressure on the Treasury to ensure measures to revive the mortgage markets are implemented immediately increase construction of new social housing both to provide for housing need and as a means of maintaining capacity in the homebuilding industry whilst the market recovers accelerate refurbishment programmes for social housing acquire further social housing through the purchase of unsold stock and street properties consider the purchase of unsold family homes which have been on the market for more than a year encourage public sector bodies to make land available for the development of new homes The report also urges the Government to do more to help those at risk of repossession by considering sanctions against lenders who repossess too quickly and by doing more to protect tenants and homeowners from unscrupulous landlords An Office of Fair Trading recommendation for sale and rent back schemes should be implemented as a matter of urgency to protect the growing number of households falling behind in mortgage payments The Committee would like to see more done to support housing associations including increasing social housing grant where necessary Housing Policy Paul Balchin, Maureen Rhoden, 2019-01-09 Now in its fourth edition this textbook has been completely revised to examine the current state of housing policy in the UK Exploring developments in housing policy made since Labour's 1997 electoral victory the book addresses current issues including the brownfield versus greenfield debate the phasing out of renovation grants the transfer of local authority housing to registered social landlords boom slump and boom in the owner occupied sector Other topics addressed range from regional policy and housing across the UK to social exclusion community care and homelessness
